Major gasoline price hike seen for Ohio drivers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A petroleum industry official says by mid-summer the cost of gasoline in Ohio will increase five to seven cents per gallon.

Roger Dreyer, executive director of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers Association, said, "I would say you will be paying 42 cents a gallon by mid-summer."

Purchasers of wholesale fuel in Ohio are also feeling the pinch of an upcoming crisis in diesel and heating oil.

"For the first time in history, except during the war years, we have no assurance that future fuel needs will be met. And the future is right around the corner," said Robert Ratchford, executive vice president of Commercial Motor Freight, Inc., Ohio's largest trucker.

The state's deputy director for purchasing, Walter McCreary, said Ohio's requirements for heating fuel will double in the next year because of certain Environmental Protection Agency requirements.

"We may not have sufficient oil to satisfy the requirements," McCreary said. "I have requested that an energy officer be appointed to establish priorities."

The state exhausted its 1.4 million gallon limit of heating fuel earlier than expected this past winter and had to purchase oil on the open market at more than twice its contract rate.

"It hasn't struck yet because the big summer driving hasn't started yet," Dreyer said. "There has been some price increase at the wholesale level that has not shown up retail. They must show up, because otherwise people will go out of business."

"You'll see signs up, 'Sorry, no gas. Come back tomorrow.'

"Within the next 15 to 20 days when the driving starts picking up, you will see a shortage. Prices are going to go up because the crude oil costs more.

"Normally refiners stockpile gas. They had to turn all their efforts to the home heating market and utilities. This took away their storage capacity," Dreyer said.

"I don't think it will come to rationing. But the days of gas wars, where people were fighting under free enterprise, is over. When you can't get the product, you can't fight," he said.

Two major Ohio gasoline suppliers refuse to speculate on prices.

Pitt Curtiss, a Standard Oil Co. (SOHIO) official, said, "We expect to meet the demand for our product in the state of Ohio on the retail level."

SOHIO purchases three-quarters of its supply of crude oil from other refiners, Curtiss said. "The ability to forecast the quantity of the products we'll have is dependent on our ability to have a supply of crude oil. Any increased cost of crude oil represents a direct expense."

He said rationing, closing service stations certain hours or days during the week or limiting amount of fill-ups has not been discussed with dealers.

"Certainly there is a shortage of gasoline. But we do not anticipate any rationing in our retail marketing area in the Midwest," said Mike Russo, a spokesman for Marathon Oil Co. of Findlay.

"We are not anticipating any growth in sales since the amount of product available to us this year is comparable to last year," he said. Inventory for the Midwest is down two per cent from last year.

Oklahoma to forfeit 9 victories

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The University of Oklahoma Sooners, the nation's No. 2-ranked football team last year, will forfeit nine of its victories including its Sugar Bowl triumph over Penn State because of recruiting irregularities.

Athletic Director Wade Walker told a news conference the school would forfeit every game in which freshman Kerry Jackson of Houston, Tex., the top quarterback this spring, played. That will mean Oklahoma will retain victories over only Kansas State, Iowa State and Nebraska.

In addition, Walker said, the resignation of offensive line coach Bill Michael had been asked for and received.

Walker said the high school transcripts of both Jackson and Mike Phillips, also of Houston, had been tampered with. He said Michael had admitted he had knowledge of the transcript irregularities.

Head Coach Barry Switzer said he had assured Dr. Paul Sharp, the university president, that no other member of his staff was involved in the incident.

Walker also said that Jackson had stayed in the athletic dormitory during two visits to the OU campus when he was a high school senior.

Both the transcript tampering and the dorm stays are violations of Big Eight Conference regulations, and the conference is investigating, Walker said.

City provides garden plots for citizens

SEATTLE (AP) — The P-Patch is being split into small garden plots in what a city councilman calls "an urban recreational experience."

The city, which has leased three acres for the 10-month experiment with a public vegetable garden, will divide the land into 300 plots of 400 square feet each, or 20 feet by 20 feet.

Search for body now in 9th day

The search for the body of Darrell Wheeler, 20, of Stoutsville, at Deer Creek Reservoir, continued into its ninth day early Wednesday.

Pickaway County sheriff's deputies said the dragging and diving operations were being concentrated near the area where the boat in which Wheeler was riding capsized. The lake area is to remain closed until the body is found.

Three other passengers from the April 7 tragedy were rescued.

Brown pleads not guilty to first degree murder

John Allen Brown, 21, Frankfort, pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge when he appeared in Municipal Court today for arraignment in connection with the shooting death of a 17-year-old Chillicothe girl.

Brown, represented by his court-appointed attorney Walter Seifreid, also requested a preliminary hearing on the charge. Acting Judge John Bryan set the hearing for 9 a.m. April 25. Brown's $150,000 bond was continued and he was remanded to jail.

Seifreid said he would file an application with the court requesting the appointment of additional counsel to assist him in the defense.

Police and Prosecutor Otis Hess Jr., were compiling a list of witnesses to be subpeanoed for the hearing.

Brown is charged with the Friday morning shooting death of Demeatris Louise Winfield, 17, of Chillicothe.

According to Hess, Brown shot Miss Winfield in the left temple, after she refused to walk across the room as he had ordered her to do. The shooting took place at the Leonard Kelley residence, 721 Gregg St., early Friday during an alleged "pot party," Hess said.

Miss Winfield was dead on arrival at University Hospital, Columbus.

Nixon cites 'major developments'

Watergate case wide open

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate investigation is gaining momentum after President Nixon abandoned the blanket claim of innocence for White House aides.

Nixon said Tuesday he will send his aides to testify publicly as demanded by Senate investigators preparing for hearings next month.

He said he launched a new presidential inquiry into the matter last month, about the time Watergate burglar James McCord began telling his story to a Senate committee and a federal grand jury.

This time the President's inquiry is being conducted by persons outside the White House staff, some of whose members reportedly have been implicated in McCord's secret testimony.

In a related development, Nixon's re-election committee was reported to have offered the Democratic party $525,000 in damages to settle a multi-million-dollar package of lawsuits over the Watergate raid. But Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss said he wouldn't accept any offer until it becomes clear that the affair will be aired sufficiently in public inquiries.

Nixon disclosed his actions in a three-minute statement to newsmen at the White House. No questions were permitted.

He said he met Sunday with Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen who gets reports of grand jury testimony.

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case," Nixon said, "...real progress has been made in finding the truth."

He wouldn't elaborate on the developments or name anyone who might be under suspicion. But he also said he has told investigators that no officials are exempt from prosecution, and said he'll suspend any government employe indicted in the case and fire anyone convicted.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that supersedes Nixon's longstanding claim that administration officials have been cleared, because the latest statement stems from "serious charges" that Nixon said first reached him March 21.

The President's original claim was made more than seven months ago on Aug. 29 at a California news conference. Nixon said then that presidential counsel John W. Dean III had concluded an independent investigation of the burglary and wiretapping of Democratic offices at the Watergate building.

Nixon said then "categorically" that Dean's probe indicated nobody then in the White House or the administration was involved. However, reliable sources say McCord has testified that another conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, told him that Dean himself helped plan illegal bugging and related activities.

Nixon now has abandoned his attempts to keep Dean and other White House aides off the Senate witness stand. He capitulated to demands by a special Senate investigating committee, headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that presidential aides testify in public and under oath.

Ervin's hearings begin May 15, with live television coverage permitted. Nixon said television publicity wasn't a "central issue" behind his reluctance to allow testimony by his aides.

Nixon's statement brought murmurs of approval from Republicans, some of whom have warned of looming election disaster because of Nixon's handling of the affair.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland called it a "constructive decision." Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona said he was "very pleased." Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, head of the Republican minority on the Ervin committee, said it was "a great thing for the President to do." GOP National Chairman George Bush said it "will clear the air and lay to rest public suspicion ...." Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York said it was "most welcome."

EQUIPMENT INSPECTION — Inspectors from the State Department of Transportation check the readiness of trucks at the local state highway garage, CCC Highway-W. Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent, said the inspection team checked all trucks, mowers, and other equipment to make sure they were in proper operating condition for the upcoming summer roadwork.

President spells out energy policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon removed limits today on oil imports and asked Congress to end federal price regulation on new supplies of natural gas.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said oil importers could bring in as much oil as permitted under their present quotas without paying any further tariffs. However, he said, they may import petroleum in addition to the 1973 quota levels upon payment of a fee.

He said the tariff-free imports will be phased out over seven years until all oil imports are governed by the fee schedule.

In other major points of his message, Nixon asked Congress to deregulate the price control of new natural gas supplies on the interstate market by the Federal Power Commission.

The proposed legislation would authorize the secretary of the Interior to monitor natural gas prices and impose a ceiling on them if necessary.

Prices already dictated by the FPC would remain unchanged.

The President directed the Interior Department to triple by 1979 its leasing of federal offshore areas for oil and gas development by extending the leasing into new areas beyond an ocean depth of 200 meters (about 622 feet) and beyond the channel islands off Santa Barbara, Calif.

But he resubmitted his previous proposal to create an oilfree sanctuary off Santa Barbara in the area which suffered a major oil spill in 1969.

Nixon asked Congress to authorize the Interior Department to license the construction of deep-water ports in federal waters beyond the three-mile limit.

He proposed further the department be converted into a new Department of Energy and Natural Resources, expanding his previous proposals along those lines.

To enable power plants to continue burning coal, a plentiful fuel, Nixon asked the states to postpone implementation of a national air quality standard designed to protect the environment.

Federal law requires achievement of a separate standard by 1975 for protecting public health but sets no specific deadline for attaining the environmental protection standards. At least 22 states, however, have proposed to meet both standards by 1975.

In another action Nixon directed the Interior Department to establish an Office of Energy Conservation to coordinate federal energy-saving programs.

And he directed the Commerce Department to develop a voluntary program by which manufacturers may label energy-consuming products to display their efficiency.

Live cartridges being sought south of Xenia

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Air Force personnel continued to search a 15-mile stretch of road in southern Greene County today for seven live 25mm cartridges believed to have fallen off a truck.

Officials at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton said 11 other shells were recovered earlier by the Greene County sheriff.

The shells were believed to have fallen off a truck Friday as the truck traveled between the base and the Spring Valley Wildlife Preserve, where surplus ammunition was being detonated.

An Air Force spokesman said the nine-inch, armor piercing ammunition used for anti-aircraft could explode if handled improperly.

Senate panel kills rights amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Senate committee, by a 6-3 vote, today killed the proposed equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The House passed it March 28 on a 56-40 vote.

Backers in the Senate Financial Institutions, Insurance and Elections Committee tried to delay the vote until May 1, when the General Assembly returns from an Easter recess. That was defeated 5-4.

Sens. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, and Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, offered the motion that it be recommended for passage. Both then joined the majority against it.

Joining them in opposition were Sens. M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland; Anthony F. Novak, D-25 Cleveland; Robert O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Anice W. Johnson, R-18 Aurora.

Voting for the motion were Sens. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria; Marigene Valiquet, D-11 Toledo, and the committee Chairman, Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

Matra argued that nothing would be gained by postponing the vote until May. "This issue has been before us for two years. Another two weeks is not going to make any difference."

The postponement was sought by Corts and Miss Valiquette, one of the chief lobbyists for the Equal Rights. She has been sporting an "ERA" button on her blouse since the amendment for ratification was first introduced early in the session.

Miss Valiquette claimed it was unfair that the committee take a vote just six hours after the final hearing. She indicated she had not been informed the vote would be taken.

"I consider it an absolute lie to say that anybody on this committee did not know that this issue would come up this morning," countered Aronoff. He said he had individually informed all members a motion either way would be acceptable.

The committee completed its hearing on the proposal Tuesday night. It was limited to opponents of the amendment and about 200 persons, most of them women, were present.

Death claims Frank Grubbs, former legislator and poet

Frank Grubbs, 92, of Good Hope, who was probably better known as a poet than as a former representative to the Ohio General Assembly, died at 6:50 a.m. Wednesday in Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient since he suffered a fractured hip in a fall April 7.

He was born in Somerset, Perry County, but had lived in Good Hope ever since his family moved there when he was 6 years old.

He was graduated from Good Hope High School in 1899 and for several years after that he pitched in minor league baseball at Dayton and Fort Wayne, Ind.

He was employed for a time at the Bureau of Engraving in Washington, C. C., most of his life was spent in several areas of public service. He served three terms in the Ohio legislature, was a member of the Wayne Township Board of Education, Wayne Township Board of Trustees and a deputy sheriff under Sheriff William Icenhower. He was one of the few, if not the only Fayette Countian, to be sent to the electoral college. That was for President Harry S. Truman's second term.

He was a Fayette County jury commissioner at the time of his death and recently retired after many years as the representative director of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

State budget bill up for House vote today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House was to vote today on the administration's $9.8 billion budget bill with majority Democrats predicting it will pass without significant change.

Leaders wanted to send the spending proposal to the Senate before taking an Easter recess extending from today until May 1. The Senate would have two months to act before state spending authorities lapses July 1.

New bills poured into the clerk's offices Tuesday. Today is the deadline for their introduction. A total of 119 was received, and at least 50 more were to be offered today, the House clerk's office reported.

In the only major floor action Tuesday, the Senate approved the House-passed, $92.2 million federal revenue-sharing bill 29-3. Senate changes will send it back to the lower chamber.

Sen. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, the Senate sponsor, described what he called "the only dramatic changes" from the House version.

The Senate took out of the bill an allocation of $3.8 million that would have been used to pay up to half of the fares of aged and handicapped passengers on local mass transit systems. Dennis said the deletion was agreed to in order to keep the "bricks and mortar" intent of the legislation.

He said $2.2 million of the $3.8 was added to vocational education school construction, bringing that total to about $40 million. The funds represent the state's matching share of costs already authorized by voters in vocational education school districts, Dennis explained.

Otherwise, the Senate reinserted in the measure $756,000 to match federal funds for new armories at Alliance and Youngstown-Warren. The House had taken the armories out of the bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, urged support despite the deletion of the mass transit funds which his city wanted. Calabrese said he expects the Senate to put the appropriation into the two-year budget bill.

Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, who voted against the bill, said he did so "because it calls for the expenditure of a vast amount of money with very little in it for the state's largest county." The other negative votes were cast by Sens. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, and Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma.

Dennis pointed out that Ohio's mass transit systems stand to benefit "to some extent" by a House amendment to the budget bill that sets aside $2.8 million for grants to mass transit systems for equipment. "That should help to ease their financial problems," he said.

Besides the $40 million for vocational

It approved 87-0 a bill which would allow aliens who have lived within the state six months to obtain resident hunting, fishing and trapping licenses.

Another House bill, approved 75-11, would prevent non-resident brokers from acquiring control of Ohio property and casualty insurance agencies.

Indian truce is broken by gunfire

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Government reinforcements circled Wounded Knee today following a heavy exchange of gunfire that wounded at least two and possibly six of the militant Indians who have held this village 51 days.

A border patrolman from Montana said he and about 25 colleagues had been brought in to aid the 300 U.S. marshals and FBI agents around the village after the 90-minute gunfire exchange Tuesday morning and sporadic shooting the rest of the day.

An unidentified member of the estimated 150 Indians occupying Wounded Knee was listed in very critical condition this morning after undergoing brain surgery in a Rapid City hospital. A supervisor at the hospital said the man had suffered a gunshot wound in the head.

A government spokesman said at least one other Indian had been wounded during the exchange and no federal lawman had been hit. Sources on the Pine Ridge Reservation said four other militants were wounded but the five had been treated in the village.

'It's not just books'

"The library is not just books."

This slogan, developed several years ago for National Library Week, is more than just words put together to look good on a poster. A visit to the local Carnegie Public Library will demonstrate the facts behind these words.

For instance, did you know that the library subscribes to 136 different periodicals? No matter what your interest, you can probably find a magazine to appeal to you, whether it be the business world, arts and crafts, travel and recreation, hobbies, sports or keeping up with the latest international events.

Did you know that the library has over 600 records for your listening pleasure? All types of music are represented in the collection which contains everything from Bach and Beethoven to Grand Funk Railroad and all areas in between.

The library also has a fine collection of slides and filmstrips, both captioned and sound, which are available for circulation. If you need a topic for presentation to a club group or material for classroom study, you will no doubt find something in the audio-visual department of the library to help you out.

In addition to all these materials, the library offers photocopy service, a reference "hot-line" to the Cincinnati Library, several local and national newspapers including the Sunday New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, children's programs and services, and (we can't forget this) a collection of over 48,000 books to satisfy your educational, cultural, practical and recreational needs.

This collection is highlighted by a fine reference section, including one of the best genealogy departments in the area. And for your leisure moments there are copies of the latest best sellers and paperbacks galore.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Voodoo, Voodoo, Voodoo . . .

If you pushed the ivy away and closely scrutinized the offerings of our best colleges and universities, say, half a century ago, you could be certain to find some phony courses. However, these "guts," or "pipes," were invariably given a decent academic disguise.

You couldn't tell by reading the catalogue that Prof. Olam's Psychology 107 — "Social Pathology"— consisted of his autobiography and thoughts on life, and that the only way to get less than a B was to cut the class continually.

I point this out because many critics of the academic scene talk and write as though once upon a time ideal colleges, populated by dedicated scholar-teachers and committed students, were the norm in American higher education — whereas today the scene is dominated by cowardly administrators and faculty who have abandoned their ideals and students who have lost all interest in a real education. This is largely nonsense: the problem is that the drapes have been opened — the "gut courses" have gone public.

WHAT BROUGHT this to mind was the coincidental reading of, first, an article in Newsweek on the injection into college curriculums of courses on voodoo, witchcraft and the occult, and, second, a piece in the New York Times on a course at Cornell in wine tasting.

Newsweek's story has a marvelous quote from a man who teaches a seminar on dreams at California State University, San Francisco: the "huge desire" for occult studies, he asserted, was "a reaction to our grossly materialistic culture."

Maybe, but before going too far along that track I would like to see his grading profile, that is, what percentage of his students gets A. Students are a cold-blooded lot. I recall a professor at Columbia who rejoiced in the popularity of his courses until, one year, they were decimated. Inquiry revealed that the main cause of the fall-off was that his classroom had been moved from the first to the fourth floor of Fayerweather Hall!

In this connection we had an amusing time at my university with a course on witchcraft. Carried away by a passion for relevance, the student educational policy committee requested that witchcraft be added to the curriculum. We thought about it for a while and — somewhat to their surprise — agreed. On the appointed day a mob turned up for the first class and in walked a professor of history, who is in fact an expert on witchcraft, with the course syllabus.

Perhaps the students expected to organize covens and meet in caves at night, but they staggered out with a reading list on the history and the historical significance of witchcraft. If memory serves, seven returned and completed the course. That was the last we heard of witchcraft and one of my spies reported that a similar demand for astrology was dropped because they figured the boys in astrophysics would pull the same stunt.

BACK TO CORNELL and wine tasting. Cornell has a School of Hotel Administration which, I'm told, is highly regarded. When I was taking my graduate degree in constitutional law in Ithaca, we looked on the hotel school with genial scorn: perhaps wrongly it was regarded as a sanctuary for athletes.

In our spare time we would formulate course offerings: Sandwich-making 101, Bed-changing 267 (Graduate Seminar), and the like. However, the hotel school went its vocational way and the college of liberal arts minded its own business.

What I find distressing about wine tasting is that there are two courses. One, quite sensibly, for future hotel managers has 90 students. But another, with 214 students, is offered for general university credit!

Presumably the faculty of arts and sciences approved of this and I urge them to reconsider. There have always been "gut courses" scattered around Cornell, but this is really indecent exposure.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

A favorable Supreme Court?

WASHINGTON — Cynical though it may sound, there seems one logical reason to explain the extreme position taken by the Nixon Administration on executive privilege and the right to enforce secrecy throughout government. The answer is the Supreme Court of the United States.

Consider the sequence of events. President Nixon's aides refuse to testify before Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate investigating committee. Whether Sen. Ervin goes through with his threat to try to arrest them or not, their defiance will bring citations of contempt. This will be appealed to the courts with at least two to three years intervening before it reaches decision in the Supreme Court.

By that time it can be safely assumed the President will have not four of his own "strict constructionist" justices but five. The court will be his stone wall of defiance to the Congress.

As recent surveys have shown, the four Nixon justices have voted with remarkable consistency in any case involving presidential powers. They have been joined by either Justice Byron White or Justice Potter Stewart with few exceptions to make a majority. This leaves the three survivors, Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall repeatedly in a minority.

THE ONLY possible explanation of Attorney General Richard Kleindienst's unprecedented proposal for executive privilege for the entire executive establishment is the confidence that the Nixon court will sustain any challenge on this score. In his press conference on March 15 the President said:

"Perhaps this is the time to have the highest court of this land make a definitive decision with regard to this matter (executive privilege)."

In campaigning both in 1968 and in 1972 for "strict constructionist" judges Mr. Nixon was, in effect, campaigning against the Supreme Court. He has never given any legal definition of what he means by "strict constructionist."

There is nothing in the Constitution about executive privilege. When his aides are pressed to say what this authority derives from they cite the separation of powers.

But the Kleindienst sweep, covering everyone from the door clerk to the Attorney General himself, is to infer authority that the Founding Fathers never dreamed of.

A SUPREME COURT decision in 1957 overruled a contempt of Congress conviction of a witness who refused to divulge names of alleged Communists before the House Un-American Activities Committee. The opinion written by Chief Justice Earl Warren sustained the defense of the witness, a United Auto Workers official, John T. Watkins, based on his reliance on the First Amendment. The Chief Justice cited an earlier ruling to the effect that "an investigatioon (by Congress) into individual affairs is invalid if unrelated to any legislative purpose." "There is no congressional power to expose for the sake of exposure."

But, as those familiar with the Watkins opinion and its significance point out, the "legislative purpose" in the Watergate investigation is clear enough. It is to expose wrongdoing so that laws may be drafted to prevent future subversion of the political process.

Directly involved are men convicted of serious crimes. Officials holding influential positions in the government and subsequently in the Nixon re-election committee stand accused of violating laws governing political contributions. Either those alleged to have been participants must face a public interrogation or the public will be denied knowledge of what actually heppened, and Congress will lack the background to draft appropriate laws.

THE SUPREME COURT is literally the court of last resort. Impeachment is a proceeding within the purview of the Constitution. Impeachment was voted by the House of Representatives against Justice Samuel Chase at the time that Thomas Jefferson was feuding with Chief Justice John Marshall. But the Senate refused to find Chase guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors as provided in the Constitution. It is obviously not a recourse when ideological issues are involved.

Franklin Roosevelt, frustrated by a conservative majority repeatedly outlawing New Deal measures, sought to add six new justices of a liberal persuasion. His "court-packing" plan drew wide opposition and was rejected by the Senate, as the controversy disclosed how deep was respect and even veneration for the court.

But if President Nixon now fills it with "strict constructionists" by his definition, putting it in position as a political barricade, that respect may not long survive.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, April 18, the 108th day of 1973. There are 257 days left in the year.

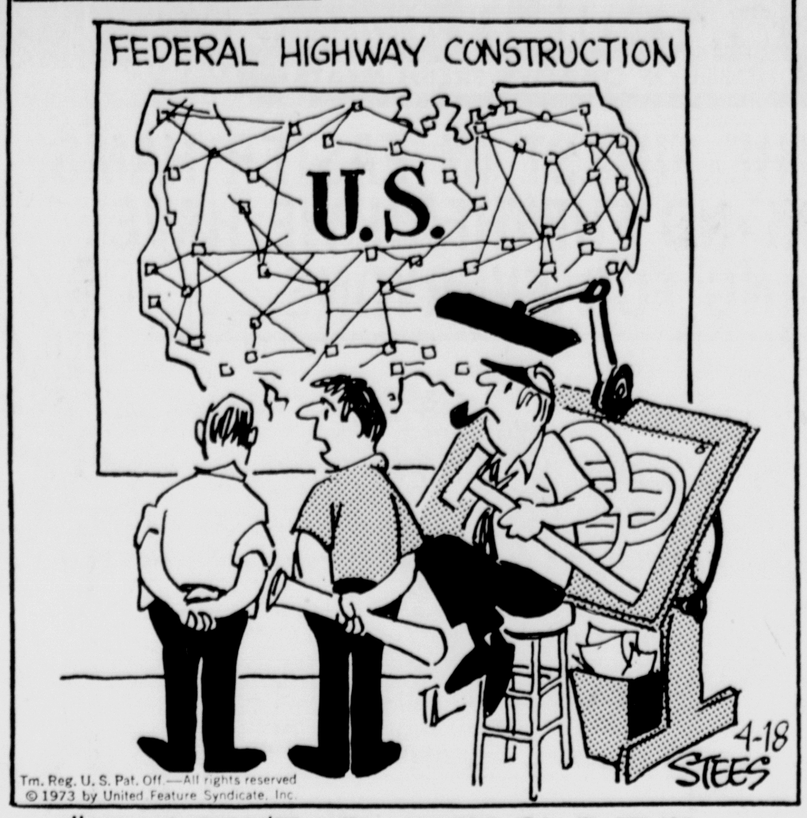

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, Paul Revere made his famous ride from Boston to warn: "The British are coming."

On this date: In 1847, U.S. forces under Gen. Winfield Scott captured Cerro Gordo Hill, the first point of resistance on Scott's march on Mexico City.

In 1906, San Francisco was hit by an earthquake. The quake and fires destroyed half the city.

Hal Boyle . . .

Hal's mailbag miscellany

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you are having trouble balancing your budget, you might keep a bird for a pet instead of a dog, a cat—or a mistress. It costs only a penny a day to feed. Some 7,670,000 U.S. families do have pet birds—about 26 million of them.

Was Abraham Lincoln the model of humility he is sometimes pictured as having been? Not according to John Hay, a White House secretary, who said in a letter to William H. Herndon, Lincoln biographer and onetime law partner: "It is absurd to call him a modest man. No great man was ever modest." Hay wrote that it was Lincoln's "intellectual arrogance and unconscious assumption of authority" that made enemies of some members of his Cabinet.

In the beginning of the automobile age, most cars were painted black. Today only three per cent are. What the trade calls "earth tones" are popular now.

Quotable notables: "Many jewels make women either incredibly fat or incredibly lean." — Playwright Sir James Barrie.

It's criminal: Crime is prevalent in modern business offices for a good reason—less than 20 per cent of all office burglaries are solved.

Wet statistic: A dry martini addict will hardly even want to dip his toe in the Atlantic ocean when he learns this: it contains 82 quintillion, 171 quadrillion, 672 trillion, 174 million, 450 thousand and 100 gallons of water—give or take a drop or two.

Hard to explain: The average man can grip or hand squeeze with a strength measured at 81 pounds, the average woman only 48 pounds. But which sex usually is able to put the squeeze on the other in a showdown?

Household help: Most experts agree that if you are trying to reduce your grocery bills you should always avoid supermarket shopping when you're hungry. You almost inevitably overbuy.

Afflicted? Try the power of the press

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that woman in Twin Falls, who wrote complaintng that no doctor in that town would deliver her baby without full payment in advance: she said a neighbor of hers who had been seeing a doctor all along suddenly found that he refused to deliver until he was paid in full.

I was a bit surprised that she hadn't gone to the newspaper. A newspaper is the public watchdog. It is the obligation of newsmen to bark when the general welfare of the public is endangered.

Sounds like weak bunch of money-hungry newsmen up there who are afraid to let anything in their paper that may make an advertiser unhappy. The advertisers then become the controlling element of the press.

This situation should be fully covered in stories and editorials. Each doctor in the town should be contacted by a reporter and his story put into print. In this action it is likely that one or more will turn up that do not subscribe to the mercenary policy described.

What is our society coming to if money, or the lack of it, determines if you have the right to live or die? Nowadays, the colleges that give the doctors their education and the hospitals in which they get their experience are largely supported by our tax dollar.

If newsmen in that area lack the intestinal fortitude to get this story in and get it in accurately, they have no right to call themselves newsmen. They lack commitment to the profession and to the public they serve. They are an insult to the professionals in the field.

That woman should camp on the managing editor's desk until he puts one or more competent reporters on the story and either proves her wrong or exposes the situation for what it is. This is the obligation of the paper to the community.

AN OLD SCHOOL MANAGING EDITOR

DEAR OLD: Hold it! The TIMES-NEWS in Twin Falls did exactly that. with no prompting from me or anyone else.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Ronny, will be 5 on Dec. 27, 1973. According to the laws of this state, a child who is 5 years old by Jan. 1, 1974, is eligible for kindergarten in September of 1973.

I'm afraid if we start Ronny in kindergarten in September he will not only be the youngest, but the smallest child in his class.

He is very bright, but his father and I are both small, and Ronny is very small for his age. Do you think he will feel handicapped if he's the shortest boy in his class?

My husband thinks we should wait a year. Then Ronny will have an extra year to grow, and maybe he won't be so much smaller than his classmates. One problem is that all of his playmates in the neighborhood will be starting kindergarten this September and he wants to start, too.

What do you advise?

RONNY'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Let Ronny start school with his friends. His mental growth is more important than his physical growth. And stop making an issue of how small he is. It may not occur to Ronny to feel handicapped because of his size unless you suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I wanted to end my life so I took an overdose of sleeping pills. My father came home and found me unconscious and rushed me to a hospital.

In order to save my life, they stuck a long tube down my throat and in so doing they impaired my vocal chords. Now I can scarcely speak above a whisper. People are always asking me if I have laryngitis.

Sometimes I say yes, but sometimes it gets so annoying I just tell them to mind their own business. What should I tell people?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: It's not necessary to explain. Simply say, "It's a chronic condition." That should suffice.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 68700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ohio Perspective

Marysville Reformatory to die

By KEN L. DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Reformatory for Women, young-looking at 56, has only three or four years to live.

The state's Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections thinks the middle-aged institution is past its prime, and plans to phase it out.

"We think we can do an even better job if we put the inmates in local communities," said Director Bennett J. Cooper. "We would create smaller institutions in, say, three metropolitan areas.

"After all, these are the communities to which the majority of the women will be going back. Being close to their communities will help in the adjustments they will have to make."

Cooper said Marysville Reformatory has, at least, two years to live. No money is included in the 1973-1975 biennium state budget for decentralizing Marysville.

But, the state has asked the federal government for $25,000 to help finance a $35,000 study of the best way to phase out the Marysville prison for women.

Cooper pointed out that inmate population at Marysville has shrunk to about 250, down from more than 400 once housed in its cottages.

"The rate of return of inmates and the cost of operating a large institution are factors in our decision," said Cooper.

He said envisioned small facilities with inmates working in the communities under the penal furlough programs with easy access to schools and training programs.

"The women could better acquire the skills that would be saleable in today's market," Cooper said.

Cooper gave the use of shock probation and improved parole handling as two reasons why the reformatory's population has been shrinking.

But, Marysville long has been stressing rehabilitation. Back in the 1940's the then-superintendent Margaret Reilly said, "No girl can be good if she doesn't have self-respect." She established a beauty parlor.

Since then the reformatory has established an improved educational program through high school, a food service training program, a beauty school and a computer technology school, among a number of rehabilitating programs.

Replacing the women's reformatory at Marysville with three smaller facilities follows the present trend in make prisons.

Never again, said Gov. John J. Gilligan at the opening of the new Southern Ohio Correctional Institution at Lucasville, will the state of Ohio build such big prisons.

For one thing, it makes it extremely difficult for families to visit inmates—an important part of returning inmates to productive lives at large.

Launch magazine for retired pros

NEW YORK (AP) — Aspiring authors over 60 years of age have a new publication designed specifically for their compositions, a glossy magazine called "IRP Review."

IRP Review will be published by a volunteer staff that includes a retired fashion editor of the New York Daily News, two former television reporters and a former teacher of literature.

The journal is the project of the 10-year-old Institute for Retired Professionals, a part of the New School for Social Research.

Mary Gerard, editor of the magazine, said, "We feel strongly that what we have to say is as important as what younger people are saying and pertinent to readers of all ages."

Plans for the social and husbands' party for May 5 at the Springfield dinner-theater were made.

Wesleyan Guild

Mrs. Helen VanZant presented "The Easter Story" for devotions at the opening of the Wesleyan Service Guild held in the church parlor. It was announced that the new hymnals had arrived and were presented to the church at the Sunday morning service.

The Guild will serve breakfast to the Youth Group in Fellowship Hall Sunday following Sunrise Service.

The program topic, "Easter Story" was given by Miss Helen Slavens, who made three chalk drawings depicting the symbol of Christianity, the Resurrection as hope and the church as the Ascension. She first drew a cross using the poem "I Am the Cross of Christ" by William Stigdor; the second picture was to represent Resurrection; and the third one was the Ascension, using the poem by Edward Markham, "The Testimony of Mary Magdalene at the Ascension."

All were invited to the dining room for refreshments of an Easter motif, served by Mrs. Dena Haines and Mrs. Nellie McFadden.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

I'm certainly glad to be back without that pain in my neck! I really believe my family enjoyed all the peace and quiet and, of course, I enjoyed the pampering. The cheery cards and flowers you sent really helped shorten those long days. Aren't we lucky to have such a fine medical staff within our community?

I'm especially pleased to have such a fine working team on our Fayette County Council for Elderly Concerns. Mrs. Edna Naylor, Mrs. Patti Briggs and the Rev. Ralph Wolford have taken a personal interest in making our 'Meals on Wheels' project a fine quality community service for citizens in their senior years. This is not a "charity" program. The 90c per meal pays for the food and labor costs. Shouldn't you be encouraging someone you know to enroll who has lost the desire or ability to cook? Call 335-0429 (First Baptist Church) to enroll.

Mrs. Richard Arnott works hard each week in lining up drivers to deliver the meals. She especially needs substitutes. Why not call her at 335-5464 and offer your help?

April 23 — "Fashion Focuses on You" is a program aimed to keep you up to date on what's new in patterns, fabrics, and notions. Mrs. Norma Deyo, extension Clothing Specialist, will head off the program at 1:30 p.m. To help you get a close up look at doing the latest construction techniques we're dividing the audience into smaller groups to attend demonstrations on "Fusible Interfacings" with Nancy Bishop from O.S.U., "Invisible Zippers" with Penni Nielson, County Extension Agent, and "Channel Knit Trim" with Lynda Purcell of the Sew-Sew Shop.

We planned this program with Ross and Pickaway Counties in order to have these quality resource people. The program will be from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the McDowell Exchange School south of Circleville. Take Route 56 southeast through Circleville to the sign — Logan Elm School (about 2 miles) and turn left at this sign (a slight curve in road.) McDowell Exchange School is behind Logan Elm High School. It is about four miles to the school from Circleville.

Everyone is welcome, so bring along a friend.

April 30 — District Conference on Aging for Fayette, Pickaway and Fairfield counties at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House, 135 E. Mound Street, Circleville, Ohio from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Everyone interested in helping our community work toward meeting the needs of our older citizens should attend.

The theme of the conference is "Local Responsibilities and Local Resources." They keynote speaker will be Rev. Glenn Biddle, director of the Jackson Area Ministries. Those attending have their choice of attending workshops on meals, housing, center programs, and transportation. There will also be representatives to consult on Social Security, Health Services, Consumer Protection and Volunteering Opportunities.

Call me at 335-1150 if you are interested in attending. We are making transportation arrangements. Registration fee is 50 cents. Lunch is being served at the Pickaway Arms for $1.50 or you may bring your own sack lunch. Paid luncheon reservations must be turned into our office by April 25.

May 16 and 17 — "Drive-in" classes and mini-lessons for women commuters primarily from Central and Southern Ohio will be among the offerings of "Horizons for Women" being sponsored May 16 and 17 on the Ohio Dominican College Campus, 1216 Sunburg Road, Columbus, Ohio.

Ohio State Extension and Ohio Dominican faculty members and other Central Ohio leaders will be speakers and panelists for the curriculum which lists ten classes including color for homes, today's foods, fashions, art judgment, consumer protection and women's changing role in the church. Cost for two classes and one of the five mini-lessons on grooming, furniture, wardrobes, sewing or food shopping is $10.00 which includes lunch both days. Call 335-1150 if you are interested.

Legion Auxiliary hears Hi-Y project in action

The American Legion Auxiliary of Paul H. Hughey Post 25 met in the Legion Home with Mrs. William E. Williams presiding. Miss Verna Williams, chaplain, offered prayer.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Lawson Rhoads made the monthly trip to the VA Hospital, Chillicothe, to take cookies provided by Mrs. Rhoads, Mrs. Wayne Boyer, Mrs. Maryon Mark, Mrs. Charles Howard and Mrs. W. H. Warning to be served to 60 patients.

A rummage sale was planned for May 5 at the Legion Hall. Members with articles to be picked up may contact Mrs. Charles Foster.

Mrs. Philip Ford, children and youth chairman, introduced Mike Domenico, David Mustine, Steve Hill and Steve Fenton, who were representatives of the Youth in Government group of the Hi-Y Club. This program was initiated many years ago by Chief Justice C. William O'Neil. It is divided into two areas, the legislative and judicial. Domenico and Mustine spoke for judicial and explained some of the activities. One was the actual planning and conducting of two mock trials held in Common Pleas courtroom with Judge Coffman presiding.

Legislative activities were explained by Hill and Fenton. Their group observed the Ohio legislature in action and have formulated bills to be presented to mock legislature at the convention in May in Columbus. The actual Senate and House chambers of the capitol will be used that day. At the same time the judicial group will be presenting appeals before the Supreme Court.

A contribution was made to the Hi-Y to support the program in the high school.

Joe McBeth will serve as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests will be Charles Tatman and Albert Jensen, brothers-in-law of the prospective groom.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Lillian Harper, 432 Western Ave., and Mrs. Vivian McBeth, of Marion. Miss Harper is also the daughter of the late Rev. Owen Harper, and Mr. McBeth is the son of the late Wayne McBeth.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, APRIL 19

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Be careful in handling finances. Try not to commit yourself to future payments when there is no certainty that you will have the money at the time.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
The realism you show in issues before you, and prompt attention to important matters will bring satisfying — even some unexpected — returns. Stress your innate good judgment.

GEMINI
(May 21 to June 21)
Opponents of your policies may have a point or two. Try for clarification. Some differences can be avoided, others ironed out.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
This is a day in which to look before you leap. Before acting, carefully investigate estimates, investments, new ventures generally. Keep firm control over emotions.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Authorities or associates may not back your wishes. But following a policy which is in the interest of all will have favorable results in the long run.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
The importance you attach to some things may have to be shifted to more pertinent matters, but don't let fear of change or plain stubbornness hamper your efforts.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Here is a time for reevaluating, "pulling over to the side" to determine if you can improve your situation through new ideas or methods. Be eager to meet new challenges.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Sturdy effort will do the trick on this on-and-off day. Planetary influences variable; some hours may be really tricky. All situations should prove interesting, however.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Much of this day's success will depend upon your disposition, approach and participation in going endeavors. Listen to both sides of a debate and note all factors.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Steady, consistent continuance of any worthwhile endeavor will soon bring rewards. Not an unusual day in any respect, but much can be accomplished.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
This day needs enthusiasm — backed up with thorough knowledge of what you're about. Reckon with others' skill, experience. Competition may be strong.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
Don't make snap decisions and don't expect the "worst," a tendency now. No matter how difficult your assignments, you can do a better job than you may think.

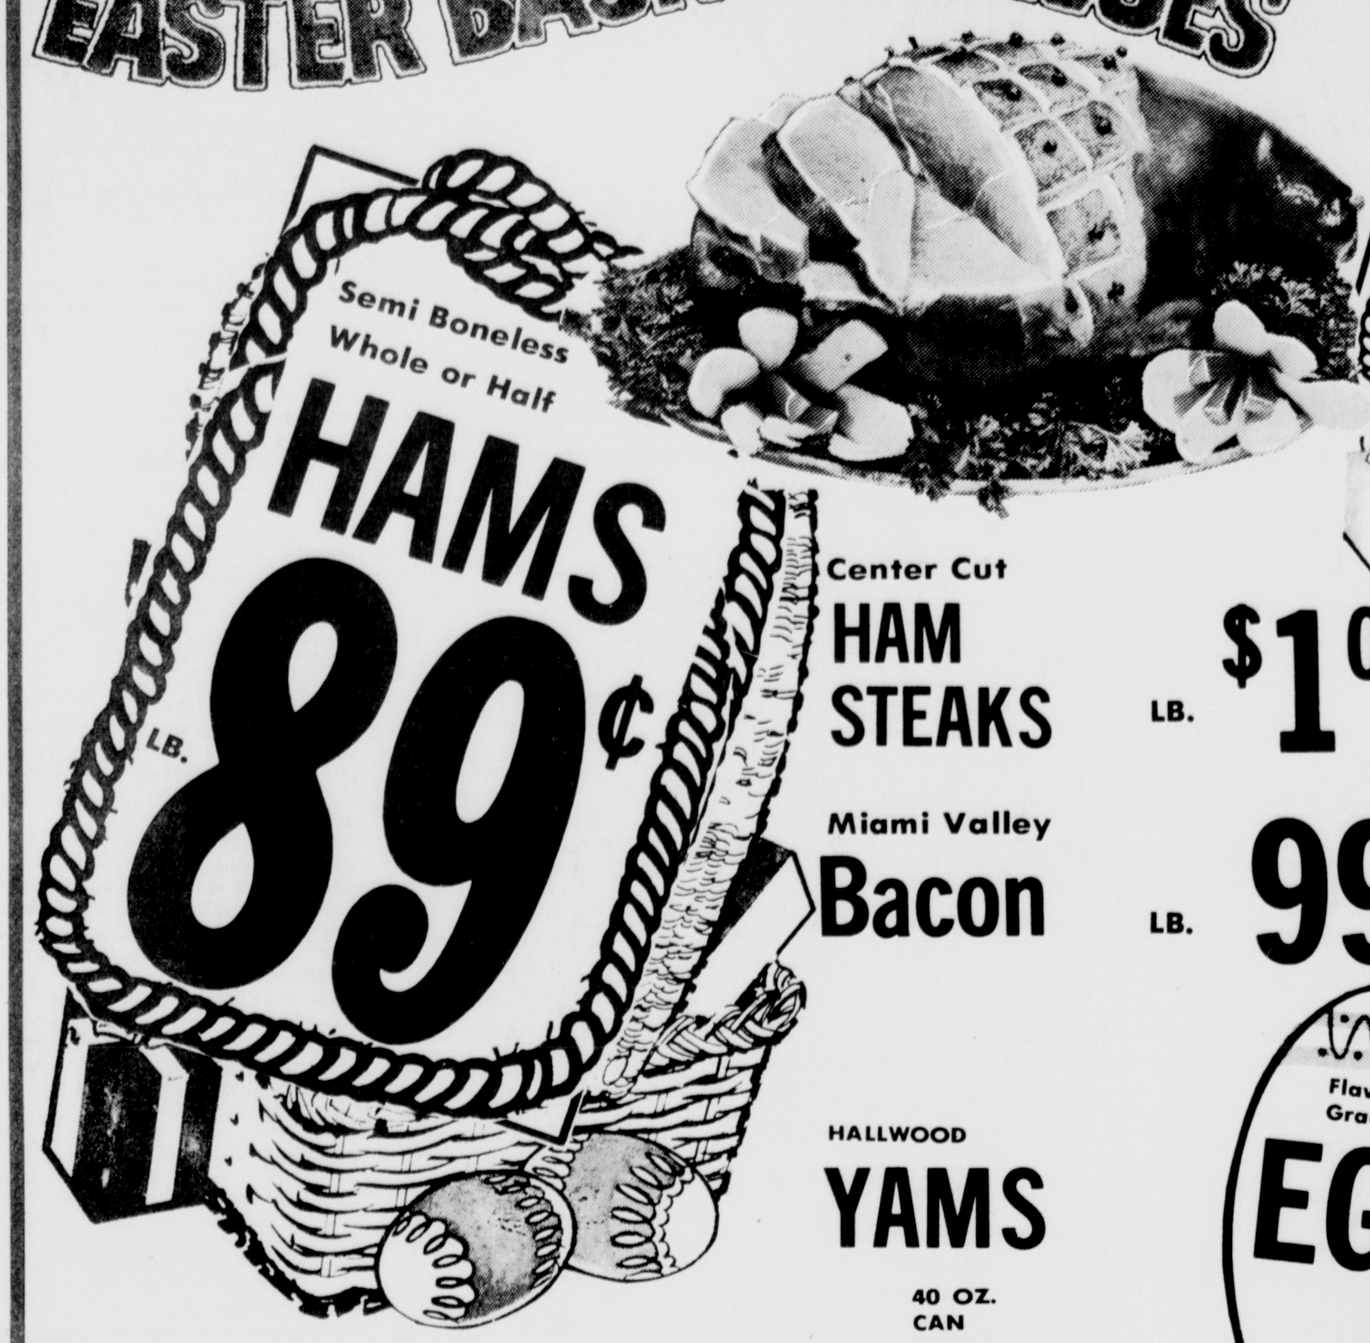

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great versatility and the verve to lead a full, interesting, action-filled life. You are suited to either the business world or the arts, depending upon your inclinations. No matter what you undertake, however, you are highly original in your methods and sometimes confound others with your unpredictability. Curb tendencies toward impulsiveness, temper tantrums and lack of balance through overemotionalism. Try to cultivate poise and more tolerance for your fellowmen. Many renowned writers, artists, business leaders, lawyers, statesmen, scientists and entertainers have been Aries-born.

Opening lead - jack of diamonds.

It is fairly common to encounter a setting where it is more dangerous to have one defender on lead than the other.

The principle of avoiding the dangerous opponent finds it application in numerous and sundry forms. Here is a case where South applies the principle twice in one hand.

West led the jack of diamonds and declarer made his first good move when he played low from dummy and low from his hand.

South realized he might lose a trump trick (if he misguessed the trump situation), and also a diamond, and therefore it was imperative to arrange matters so that he did not lose two heart tricks.

But South also realized that he could cope with the heart situation if he kept East out of the lead to prevent a heart return through the king, for then he could discard two hearts on dummy's clubs. It was in line with this thought that he did not play the queen of diamonds from dummy at trick one. The double duck of the jack eliminated all chance of East's ever taking the lead in diamonds.

West continued with a diamond, taken with the ace, and South pursued his campaign of preventing East from gaining the lead by playing a trump to the king and finessing the ten on the way back.

When the finesse succeeded, declarer scored the obvious eleven tricks, but he would have been on equally firm ground had the trump finesse lost to West's queen. In that case he would have scored only ten tricks, but he would have fulfilled his main assignment.

Note that, in tackling the trumps as he did, declarer was not so much interested in guessing the location of the queen as he was in making sure that if he lost a trump trick it would be to West, not East. With West on lead, the contract was invincible.

Expert sees free trade most effective way of meeting unlimited demand

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't think there's a limit on economic demand," said Peter Flanigan. Human need, he insisted, is never satisfied. "For me, for example, it's a place in the mountains and a boat and more."

Flanigan, who led the team that produced new trade proposals announced last week by President Nixon, was introducing what for him is another incontestable thesis: "The most effective way to meet demand is in free trade."

That notion isn't universally accepted. While trade advocates claim that $1 billion of exports produces 91,000 jobs, protectionist forces claim that imports might be destroying as many jobs — and industries too.

Flanigan, assistant to the President for international economic affairs, believes that free trade promotes the most efficient utilization of resources, including workers, and thus produces the lowest prices. But, he adds, trade today isn't free.

Europe wants to protect its less efficiently grown crops from American exports. Japan seeks to protect its computer industry. And some Americans would like to restrain imports of shoes that are produced at lower cost abroad.

The thrust of the President's approach to world trade negotiations that begin in September, Flanigan suggested in an interview, is to promote more open and equitable trade as the underpinning of international economic expansion, a bonus of which would be to give many nations a vested interest in world peace.

It begins with the assumption that needless frictions exist because of existing inequities. "There is a fundamental imbalance in the system," Flanigan said. "It was put in place after World War II when we had all the chips. Our priority was to rebuild, and we were overly generous."

As other nations or groups of nations regained their competiveness, the need to change the monetary and trading systems grew evident. Other nations could devalue their currencies, for example, but not the United States.

The old monetary order has now been challenged and buried. The United States has now devalued and thus, in theory, made its goods more competitive in world markets. But the United States still feels sinned against in trade.

Nixon's bill, called the Trade Reform Act of 1973, calls for a reduction of trade barriers if other nations are willing to lower theirs, one purpose being to bring exports, which totaled $48.8 billion last year, closer to the import figure of $55.7 billion.

Will this deficit be erased by the President's proposals?

"I don't know," said Flanigan. "We're not going into the negotiations with the idea of getting a surplus." That, he suggested, might take care of itself.

Among the bargaining tools sought by the President is unlimited authority to raise, lower or eliminate tariffs, and the authority to retaliate against what are perceived to be inequities imposed against American goods.

This proposal was widely referred to in the press as "unprecedented and sweeping," but Flanigan insists it is not. Similar rights were granted the President under the 1962 Trade Expansion Act, he said.

"Phony charge," is how he described that accusation. "It emerged because of the confrontation of the President with Congress. We are not seeking sweeping new power. We are asking for authority given in the past, to reflect the new experiences."

The second major aspect of the proposals, the right to restrain imports for five years so as to protect certain American industries, has also been criticized as an attempted usurption of power. But Flanigan notes that Congress retains its veto.

"It's a hell of a matter to go into negotiations with fewer chips than the other guy," he said, referring to the broad powers held by negotiators for some other nations.

Temporary certification issue raised

Teacher contracts, resignations top county school board agenda

Teaching contracts, resolutions pertaining to the employment of persons holding temporary certificates and extra-duty assignment contracts, and seven teacher resignations topped the agenda for the Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night.

Board members also took care of a number of miscellaneous and routine matters at the regular semi-monthly meeting.

The board approved a resolution of an intent not to re-employ teachers serving under temporary certificates. Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the board is without the authority to re-employ these persons until completion of further course work and the recommendation of the superintendent.

Those holding temporary certificates are Mrs. Susan Augspurger and Paul Grim, high school; Mrs. Elnora Armintrout and Mrs. Nancy Johnson, Title I; and Mrs. Kay Black, Mrs. Shirley Bowen, Mrs. Alberta Brennan, Mrs. Joan Rhoads, Mrs. Betty Shipley and Mrs. Carol Thomas, elementary.

IT WAS recommended by Superintendent Foster that teachers holding supplemental contracts for extra-duty assignments be notified by April 30 that such contracts expire at the end of the present school year. Many duties involving such assignments have not been completed and assessed in April, and the board will be in position to make a better decision at the end of the year, according to Foster.

Seven teacher resignations were accepted by the board. Resigning were Miss Joan Black, principal at Bloomingburg Elementary School; Mrs. Ruth Markley, teacher at Wayne School; Mrs. Bonnie Ulrich, junior high teacher at Eber School; Mrs. Linda Barker, special education teacher at Eber School; Jerry Sears, sixth grade teacher at Wilson School; Miss Paula Metzger, mathematics and French teacher at Miami Trace High School; and Mrs. Barbara Bernier, fifth grade teacher at Wilson School.

The contracts of two teachers were terminated at the end of the school year. These teachers are Jack Brown, instrumental music at the high school, and Mrs. Julie Smith, part-time business education teacher at the high school. Brown's contract was terminated since Paul Febo, former instrumental music teacher, will be returning from a leave of absence, and Mrs. Smith's due to insufficient enrollment in the business education course.

ONE-YEAR contracts were awarded to:

Harold Cook, high school; Mrs. Celeste Armentrout, Mrs. Mariah Fullerton, Mrs. Sandra Lake, Miss Shirley Taylor and Mrs. Irene Thornburg, elementary.

Two-year contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Lila Engle, Glen Marchal, Jeffrey Evans, Ronald Norcross and Mrs. Sandra Sowash, high school; Richard Bell, Michael Campbell, Mrs. Susan Coil, Mrs. Katherine Carter, Mrs. Lois Duff, Mrs. Lucy Estep, Mrs. Martha Evans, Miss Linda Gifford, Mrs. Mary Lou Griffith, Mrs. Dorthea Harvey, Mrs. Susan Justenson, Mrs. Gloria Karnatz, Miss Ruth Ann LaFollette, Mrs. Mary Lee Marshall, Miss Mary Ann Mossbarger, James Oughterson, Terry Richard, Mrs. Connie Sears, Mrs. Roberta Sewell, Miss Margaret Williams, Mrs. Christine Yambor, Roger Zimmerman and Mrs. Carolyn Shoemaker, elementary.

Three-year contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Donna Brown, Miss Jean Ann Davis, Mrs. Nancy Davis, Mrs. Catherine Lynd, David Pellior, Mrs. Vicki Snow and Edward Volker, high school; Miss Jerri Bomgardner, Gerald Burner, Mrs. Hazel Garringer, Mrs. Gladys Hammond, Miss Pat James, Miss Marie Kelley, Mrs. Mary Agnes Knecht, Mrs. Grace Patton, Mrs. Jennifer Pellior, Mrs. Jane Riley, Charles Roark, Mrs. Peggy Gass and Mrs. Evelyn Reeser, elementary.

Continuing contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Freda Corcoran, Mrs. Anna Hutchens and Mrs. Sue Stewart, elementary.

IN OTHER action:

The board accepted a student from the Westfall School District in Pickaway County on a tuition basis to attend New Holland School the remainder of the school year;

Agreed to support a high school project to construct a new trophy case. The funds will be raised by the senior class. The board tabled action on a request by Athletic Director Delmar Mowery and Principal Curtis E. Fleisher to convert a restroom area into a weightlifting room;

Granted Superintendent Foster permission to attend a county superintendents meeting May 15-17 at Salt Lake Lodge in Cambridge; and

Approved routine bills, the monthly district financial statement and high school and elementary activity accounts.

County board approves federal fund resolution

A resolution calling for action to preserve federal funds for education was unanimously approved by members of the Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night.

The measure, introduced by Superintendent Guy M. Foster, urges congressional representatives to give immediate attention to the seriousness of the fact that the appropriations have not been approved for 1973, and to utilize their congressional powers to continue the aids which serve the needs of the schools.

It also states that the board supports affirmative action to preserve the intent of the Congress and prohibit the impoundment of educational funding and suggests that proposed legislation for 1974 be enacted at the earliest possible date.

The resolution, similar to those approved by the Washington C. H. Board of Education and the Great Oaks Joint Vocational school board, also asks that the Congress and the President of the United States re-examine federal funding for elementary and secondary school education as to appropriate changes so that funding may be effective with the legislative for 1975.

The statement also points out that the school board "has a firm committment to continue and improve the support of educational opportunities for each of the children now attending the schools in the Miami Trace School District, and that the board is deeply concerned with the current state of uncertainty of both the procedures for and availability of federal funding for elementary and secondary education after July 1, 1973."

It points out that pupils in the elementary schools have had the services of Title I personnel assisting them in overcoming reading problems.

Two injured slightly in rural crash

Two persons suffered minor injuries Tuesday afternoon in a two-car collision at the intersection of Ohio 41 and Bloomingburg-New Holland Road.

Sheriff's deputies said Dorothy J. Anders, 48, Milledgeville, and Nella R. Surgenor, 17, New Holland, both received minor bumps and abrasions in the 3 p.m. crash. Miss Surgenor was later treated by her family physician.

According to investigating officers the Surgenor car had pulled westbound off Bloomingburg-New Holland Road onto Ohio 41 when the car went into a skid as it made a left turn. The vehicle slid left of center and collided headon with the northbound Anders car.

Both cars were extensively damaged.

A tractor-trailer rig jackknifed on an exit ramp at the U.S. 35 & I-71 interchange at 12:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Sheriff's deputies said Wilbur Iman, 47, Louisville, Ky., who had braked his rig for the stop sign on the southbound exit ramp when the trailer jackknifed across the roadway. The rear of the 1970 model cab was heavily damaged.

Pastor resigns at South Solon

SOUTH SOLON — The Rev. Daniel Parker has resigned as pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union here, effective in July, to become executive secretary of the district's youth group. He and his family will live in Columbus, and he will commute to his office in Circleville.

Meanwhile, plans are being made for an Easter sunrise service in the village's community park. If the weather is rainy or cold, the service will be held in the church, with the Rev. Mr. Parker and the Rev. Paul Dodge officiating.

A combined choir of the Church of Christ in Christian Union and United Church of Christ will provide special music.

The following Sunday, the Madison Plains chorus will give a concert at 7:30 p.m., April 29, in the United Church of Christ. The chorus will leave May 31 for a tour of Europe and will return June 19.

Budget readjustment urged by Cincy solon

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Councilman Thomas Luken called Tuesday for a readjustment of Federal budget priorities in order to restore program cuts he said will mean a loss of $29.4 million to Cincinnati in 1974.

Luken says he will ask in a resolution in City Council today that the President and Congress reduce spending for defense, foreign aid and space programs and eliminate "unwarranted tax preferences." The savings from that move could be directed at restoring the recently-cut urban programs.

Norwegian exports to the United States increased 17 per cent in 1972 over the previous year.

Rotarians get report on MT schools

County Superintendent of Schools, Guy M. Foster, outlined some of the successful programs of the Miami Trace school system and also some of its problems for Rotarians at the club luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

President Fred Domenico announced that the Washington C. H. club will be the host for the 1974 district conference and that Laurence Dumford will serve as the general chairman. Robert Haigler, district governor, is a member of the Washington C. H. club. Many of the details for hosting the conference remain to be worked out.

Domenico also welcomed John Toby, Montgomery Ward store manager, into the club. He was sponsored by James Ward.

DAVID BAUGHN, program chairman, introduced Foster, who noted that there are 11 elementary schools in the Miami Trace District and that the number of grades in each differs. He said 3,825 youngsters are enrolled in the district schools, from kindergarten through high school.

The schools have a budget of $2.3 million for normal operations but expenses of the school lunch program bring the total up to around $3 million a year, he said.

When the kindergarten was started last fall, Foster said there was some skepticism because full-day sessions were planned. (Most kindergartens are on half-day sessions, he noted). However, he declared, the kindergarten has been working out "very well" with the full-day schedule.

APPROXIMATELY 70 MTHS students are enrolled in the Laurel Oaks vocational school, Foster pointed out, estimating that more than 170 would go from MTHS to the school next year. The vocational school, he said, is filling a need.

The program of volunteers working with the teachers in the classroom in the school offices and library, Foster said, has not only been a help to school personnel, but also has led to a closer understanding between the school and the people.

Along that same line for improved communications, he pointed out that the school board meets in different schools throughout the county to make it easier for the people to take advantage of the opportunity to meet with members of the board. School administrators, he reminded, also have been meeting with parents at so-called "coffee hours" at the different schools.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school was described as the weakest part of the school system because it lacks many of the facilities for some courses — home economics for example.

Finances, he said, always are a problem explaining that, while the schools have received an increase from State Foundation funds, it also received a mandate for spending it.

Educational standards have been raised since more teachers are being graduated from the universities. This, he said, makes it possible for the administration to be more selective in the employment teachers.

Student guests were Brian Storm of WSHS and Steve Sollars, of MTHS.

The only other guest was Ed Wolfe, of Delaware, with Ray Downing Visiting Rotarians were Bill Stout, Bob Woods and Dave Frazier, of Circleville, and Darrell French, of Wilmington.

RURAL CARRIER — The appointment of W. Harold Moats, 211 E. Temple St., as the carrier for Route 5 has been announced by Richard Witherspoon, postmaster. Moats was appointed substitute clerk on Aug. 1, 1943, and regular clerk Aug. 1, 1949. He replaces Carl Bush who retired from the rural route Feb. 28.

Pentagon papers case near end

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cross-examination of Daniel Ellsberg in the Pentagon papers trial is expected to wind up today as the defense team prepares to rest its case.

Ellsberg testified all day Tuesday, giving terse answers to government questions, and was to return to the witness stand today for an estimated hour more of quizzing.

"I'm finding these questions very easy to answer," Ellsberg said after Tuesday's session. "I'm just saying what I did.

"I think we've been able to present a good case of what we did and why we did it. I think they (the jurors) will find that we did what we should have."

He has testified that he and co-defendant Anthony J. Russo copied the top secret study of the Vietnam war because Ellsberg wanted to present it to Congress. Ellsberg has said he had hoped the documents would spur congressmen to end the war. Both defendants are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft for the copying.

Attorneys for Ellsberg and Russo indicate that Ellsberg may be the last defense witness called. The government has said it would call several witnesses in rebuttal.

In questioning Ellsberg, Asst. U.S. Atty. David Nissen said Ellsberg had broken his promises not to copy classified documents and not to show them to unauthorized persons. The promises were in numerous forms signed by Ellsberg when he worked for the Rand Corp. "think tank" dealing with government projects.

"I signed that in good faith," Ellsberg said of a form issued when he first picked up the papers for use in a Rand study on "lessons of Vietnam." He said he didn't intend to copy the papers then but decided to do so later.

Ellsberg, clad in a blue sportjacket and gray slacks for his third full day on the witness stand, testified he later ignored Rand's rules and the statements he had signed because he felt they didn't apply to the Pentagon papers.

A point in the 7½-week defense case has been that the study was improperly kept secret and classified.

Tax refunds to be slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says late-filing taxpayers will have to wait at least six to seven weeks before any refund checks due them are put in the mail.

An IRS spokesman said Tuesday the vast majority of tax-refund checks should be processed and sent out by the end of May.

But some may take longer, so any taxpayer who has failed to receive an expected refund by that time should wait until mid-June before contacting the IRS service center where he filed his return, the agency added.

Latest figures by the IRS show that almost $10 billion in refunds will be mailed out during the next two months.

Through April 11, the IRS had processed 36.3 million refunds totaling $12.5 billion. It is expecting to send a total of $22 billion in refunds to taxpayers this year.

The average refund totals $345.95, up about $95 from the average of a year earlier.

Smoke bomb set off at OSU dormitory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A smoke bomb set off in Drackett Tower on the Ohio State University campus Tuesday night brought numerous pieces of fire-fighting equipment to the scene and caused evacuation of about 100 residents.

Officials said a fire alarm was turned in when smoke was seen coming from a room on an upper floor of the men's dormitory. There was only minor damage and no injuries were reported.

Teacher training proposal rapped by university dean

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House Education Committee was told Tuesday teacher training won't be improved by requiring an extra year of education.

What Ohio's teacher colleges need to do, said George Dixon, dean of the University of Toledo's College of Education, is make "fundamental changes" in the way they train their students for the classroom.

Dixon testified in opposition to a bill introduced by Rep. Norman Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, that would require five years of teacher preparation.

The measure also provides that a new State Board for Professional Personnel in Public Schools make detailed requirements for the type of training teachers should receive during the five years.

Dixon said he thought such a board would do little more than "refurbish" existing teacher training programs.

Also speaking out in opposition to the bill were the Ohio Education Association and the Ohio PTA.

The House Education Committee also heard testimony on a bill sponsored by Rep. Vernon F. Cook, D-39 Cuyahoga Falls, that would require the state to absorb interest payments for school districts borrowing money because taxes were not collected on time.

Dr. Harold E. Wilson, superintendent of Cuyahoga Falls schools, told the committee that Summit County tax bills have not gone out yet for the last half of 1972.

Wilson said his district has had to borrow $1.5 million so far this year at an estimated interest cost of about $3,000.

Other witnesses testified to similar problems in the Akron and Twinsburg school districts and in Ashtabula, Licking, Athens and Montgomery counties.

Flood of state proposals includes test for newsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state lawmaker who led last year's unsuccessful drive to repeal the state income tax says he thinks newsmen need to know more about fiscal matters.

Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-81 Laura, introduced Tuesday a bill that would require reporters to pass an examination on state fiscal matters before being allowed use of the Statehouse press room.

Netzley didn't mention the income tax campaign, but said he thinks Ohioans are not informed on budgetary matters and that it's the fault of the news media.

"I'm serious," he said.

He didn't say how he thinks the chances for the bill are, but he said "I expect it to get at least one hearing."

The Laura Republican's bill was among more than 100 measures introduced one day prior to the House and Senate deadline for introduction of bills. Others covered subjects ranging from traffic lights to medical schools, elections, and co-educational athletic teams.

Among 93 measures in the House were proposals to:

Establish a medical school loan commission, allow sale of alcohol on fairgrounds when fairs are not in session, change the primary election date to June in presidential years and to September in others, abolish mayors' courts, provide tax relief for renters over 65, limit campaign expenditures by public officials, authorize co-educational athletic teams in public schools, revise traffic light laws to include green arrows, right turn on red, and left turn lanes, and establish state anti-poverty action councils.

Among 26 new Senate bills were seven by Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, to make various election law reforms—including door-to-door registration.

Other Senate proposals would require the state to pay strip mine owners the value of coal that cannot be mined under state regulations, prohibit any public official from receiving a salary higher than that of the governor, and set requirements for building construction permits.

No end seen to rainfall across East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms scattered rain from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Ohio Valley to the northern Appalachians today, as a new storm gathered over the Great Basin.

Excessive rainfall during the past two days has aggravated the flood threat on all rivers from eastern Texas through the lower Mississippi Valley, the National Weather Service said.

Twelve inches of rain swamped Morgan City, La., Monday and Tuesday, seven inches washed New Orleans and five-inch downpours ranged northward into Mississippi.

Tides three to five feet above normal along the north-central Gulf Coast also produced tidal flooding and slowed the flow of several rivers at flood stage.

Stockmen's advisories were issued from Nevada to Colorado and Wyoming as rain mixed with snow spread over the area on gusty winds.

The cold air following the storm was expected to produce winds to 45 miles per hour over the Southern California coast. Gale warnings were posted along the central California coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 28 at Great Falls, Mont., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

22-year-old missing person case revived

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — One of Cleveland's most famous and its oldest missing person case will be reopened this morning when police check out a tip that the body of Beverly Potts is buried beneath a West Side auto repair shop.

Beverly Potts was 10 years old when she disappeared Aug. 24, 1951 — almost 22 years ago. She had walked one block from her home to view a showwagon presentation at a park playground.

Cleveland detectives are withholding the name and location of the garage until they can search the place.

The girl's parents are dead and a sister, Anita, moved from the city several years ago.

Truck fire causes only minor damage

Only minor damage was reported in a truck fire at the intersection of Ohio 41 and Parrott Station Road Tuesday morning.

Sheriff's deputies said a wheel bearing caught fire on a semi-rig driven by Howard W. Robinson, Wilmington. Officers attempted to douse the fire with an extinguisher but were unsuccessful. The Jeffersonville Fire Department was called to the scene.

Grimsley drapes ciphers around Padres

Don Zimmer predicts Cincy repeat in NL

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Now that he has seen all five of the Padres' National League rivals, San Diego Manager Don Zimmer is willing to predict Cincinnati will repeat as league champion.

"I thought Houston might make a race of it if its pitching was sound, but right now I can't see anyone beating the Reds," Zimmer said Tuesday night after lefthander Ross Grimsley beat the Padres 3-0 for Cincinnati's fifth straight victory.

"The Reds have too much balance—speed, power, pitching, defense, everything," Zimmer judged.

Cincinnati had trouble last year with San Diego lefthander Fred Norman, who beat them four times in five decisions. Tuesday night, the Reds nicked Norman for three runs in seven innings, one on a single by Dave Concepcion and the others on a two-run homer by Joe Morgan.

"Norman pitched a good game, but we're hot," said Pete Rose after the defending National League champions gained their ninth victory in 12 games this spring.

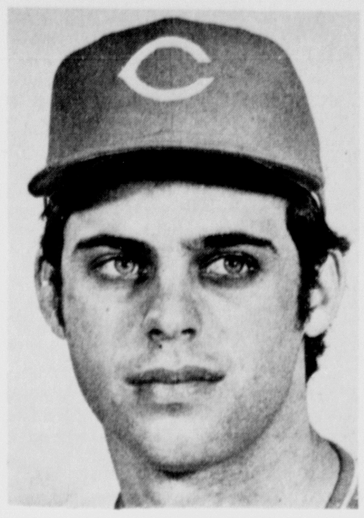

Morgan had a hand in both Cincinnati rallies. The little second baseman singled to open the sixth inning, and was bunted to second and scored on Concepcion's single with two out.

Rose walked with two out in the seventh before Morgan sliced his third homer of the year against the left field wall, above the new eight-foot-high yellow stripes that have shortened the home run dimensions here.

"I didn't think they would want me to pitch to you," Rose said to Morgan in jest.

"That's the first opposite-field homer 'Ive ever hit, even in the minors," said Morgan, a lefthand hitter who stands only 5 feet 7. "I don't have any power to left field but I knew the one tonight would be off the wall. I hit it good."

The Padres collected eight hits, two more than the Reds, but Grimsley, 2-0, appeared even tougher than he was last season when he had a 14-8 record and won two of three games in the World Series against Oakland.

Added attractions on tap

Reds launch 8-game homestand on Friday

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds, leaders in the National League's West Division, will open an eight-game homestand starting Friday night at Riverfront Stadium.

Hank Aaron, closing in on Babe Ruth's lifetime home run record, will make his first appearance of the year when Atlanta invades for a three-game series starting Friday.

MONTREAL will make its initial appearance of the season here Tuesday and Wednesday April 24-25 and Philadelphia visits Riverfront for a three-game weekend series April 27-29.

The homestand is loaded with specials for everyone. It gets started with Teen Night on Friday when youngsters through age 19 can purchase regular $3 reserved seats for $1. The Blue Stone Ivory, a Cincinnati rock group, will provide the pre-game entertainment.

The season's first Businessmen's Special is on tap Wednesday, April 25 when the Expos are the attraction. Game time is 12:30 p.m., which gives the fan an opportunity to lunch at the ball park, see the game and still get back to the desk for a couple hours work late in the afternoon.

That day will also be special for senior citizens. Fans 65 and over can purchase a regular $3 reserved seat ticket for $1.50 for the Cincinnati-Montreal game.

College Night is scheduuled Friday, April 27 when the Phillies make their first stop in Cincinnati this season. Nationally-known recording artist LeRoy Van Dyke will entertain prior to the game. College students and their dates can purchase a regular $3 reserved seat for $1.50.

One of the biggest Reds specials of the year is Bat Day, which will be held Sunday, April 29. Each boy or girl, 14 and under accompanied by a separate paying adult, will receive an official Louisville bat suitable for Little League use. Each bat will be autographed by a Cincinnati player.

ALTANTA presents a new look in 1973. Manager Eddie Mathews made some moves over the winter and acquired second baseman Dave Johnson and catcher John Oates from Baltimore in exchange for versatile Earl Williams. The Braves also obtained pitchers Gary Gentry and Dan Frisella from the New York Mets and Carl Morton from Montreal.

Montreal is always a tough opponent for the Reds. Expos manager Gene Mauch, one of the game's top strategists, is always up to something, like the time in 1972 when he employed a five-man infield against Cincinnati.

Chances are the Reds will see lefty Steve Carlton when the Phillies invade. The Philadelphia ace was the Cy Young Award winner a year ago when he won 27 games.

Cubs' Fergie outduels Seaver for 1-0 victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver is not only a great pitcher but he knows his baseball, too.

"You've got to score to win," the New York Mets' ace said knowingly Tuesday after being outpitched by Ferguson Jenkins, who hurled a two-hitter and retired the last 18 batters as the Chicago Cubs made off with a 1-0 victory.

Seaver, who rarely gets any batting support, also is perceptive.

"I noticed from the first inning that we didn't score any runs," he added.

In his three outings this season, Seaver has been matched against Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and Jenkins. The Mets went wild in his first start, mauling Carlton for three runs in a 3-0 victory. They exploded for two in the first inning of a 2-1 triumph over Gibson and that's the last time Seaver has had any runs to work with.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 4-3 in 14 innings, Philadelphia outslugged Montreal 9-6, Cincinnati blanked San Diego 3-0, San Francisco took a doubleheader from Atlanta 15-2 and 2-0 and Los Angeles trimmed Houston 7-2.

Seaver, who allowed five hits, breezed through the first nine Cub batters before Rick Monday hammered the first pitch of the fourth inning over the right field fence for the game's only run. Monday had only four previous hits this season, all singles.

Pittsburgh reached Bob Gibson for a 3-0 lead in the first inning but had to wait until the 14th and Dave Cash's run-scoring single to make the victory over St. Louis official. Reliever Alan Foster walked Gene Alley to open the 14th and Gene Clines sacrificed before Cash laced his decisive single to left field.

Tommy Hutton's two-run pinch double highlighted a four-run rally in the eighth inning that carried Philadelphia past Montreal.

Ross Grimsley scattered eight hits and Joe Morgan and Dave Concepcion provided the offense as the Reds beat the Padres for their fifth consecutive victory and ninth in the last 10 games following an 0-2 start.

San Francisco pounded out 21 hits in trouncing Atlanta in their opener. The barrage included two singles and two doubles by Chris Speier, four singles by Ed Goodson, a double and homer by Tito Fuentes and a two-run double by Dave Rader.

The nightcap was a pitcher's battle, with Ron Bryant and Randy Moffitt combining on a five-hitter to best Ron Reed.

Willie Davis and Ron Cey homered to back the eight-hit pitching of Andy Messersmith as Los Angeles won its fifth game in a row and sent Houston to its fourth straight defeat.

Post 25 tryout call

Three dates have been scheduled for tryouts for the Washington C. H. American Legion Post 25 baseball team.

Dennis Morris, the new Post 25 head baseball coach, announced that the tryouts will open at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 29 at the Washington Senior High School diamond.

Morris, head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains High School, said all boys interested in playing in the summer program must attend the April 29 tryout session.

Other tryouts are booked at 2 p.m. May 6 and at 2 p.m. May 13, both at the WSHS diamond.

Panthers atop SCOL baseball title chase

Miami Trace, which has emerged from the starting gate with four consecutive victories, is atop the South Central Ohio League baseball standings this spring.

Head coach Dave Pellior's fourth Miami Trace edition, which captured the SCOL baseball championship two years ago with a glittering 9-1 worksheet, are leading the league with a 2-0 record.

The Panthers have beaten defending SCOL champion Circleville and always-tough Hillsboro on the weather-hampered spring sports schedule. Miami Trace has also picked up a pair of non-league wins.

MIAMI TRACE appears destined to better last year's 6-8 all-games and 5-5 (third place) SCOL showing. In 1971 when the Panthers were SCOL champions they registered a gleaming 15-3 overall record.

Circleville, which lost to pesky Wilmington Monday night, is in second place with a 3-2 record. Hillsboro and Wilmington are next in line with identical 1-1 loop marks.

Head coach Rodger Mickle's second Washington C. H. Blue Lion version holds a 1-2 SCOL record. The Blue Lions topped Wilmington, but dropped a pair of contests to Circleville. The Lions are 5-5 overall.

Head coach Ron Bash's Greenfield McClain team, which lost the services of all-league third sacker Larry Crabtree when he participated in an independent basketball tournament, is winless in league action.

LL tryouts set Monday

Tryouts for boys wishing to participate in the Washington C. H. Little League baseball program this summer have been postponed until Monday.

Major league players who had their tryouts rained out this week, starting with boys numbered 51 and on, will tryout at 6 p.m. with the minor league tryouts following. All boys eight and nine years old before July 31 and new to the program are required to try out Monday.

Lee Lynch, president of the Washington C. H. Little League, said the rainy weather and Easter weekend forced postponement until Monday.

Kennedy 'misconduct' under study

NEW YORK (AP) — The Board of Governors of the National Basketball Association meets today to decide whether Commissioner Walter Kennedy was "guilty of misconduct" in the John Brisker case as held by a Federal judge.

The Board's decision also will decide whether Philadelphia or Seattle gets the No. 4 first round pick in Thursday's NBA draft of college players.

Brisker, a high scoring 6-foot-5 forward, had been picked by Philadelphia in the 1969 NBA draft, but he signed with Pittsburgh of the American Basketball Association. When the Pittsburgh franchise folded after the 1972 season he signed with Seattle.

Kennedy permitted Seattle to keep Brisker, but since Philadelphia held prior rights the Commissioner awarded Seattle's first round draft pick to the 76ers and fined the SuperSonics $10,000.

U.S. District Court Judge John H. Tenney ruled last week that Kennedy had "usurped" the authority of the Board and was "guilty of misconduct" because he did not hold a hearing or consult with the Board before making his decision. Judge Tenney also eliminated the fine.

Rich Wooster wins feature at Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Rich Wooster took command at the three-quarter mark and held on for one-length win in the $1,200 feature race at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night.

Driven by Richard Hackett, the winner returned $5.60, $3 and $2.60. Lady Dartmouth placed at $4 and $3 and Prim Bloom paid $3.60 to show.

The 7-7 combination of Bryans Scotty Jeff and Key Express returned $35.20 in the daily double.

A crowd of 1,566 produced a handle of $118,845.

Hendrick's homer sets new mark

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Indians center fielder George Hendrick flattened one side of the baseball, along with the Milwaukee Brewers, with one swing of the bat Tuesday night.

Hendrick's sixth-inning blast carried 455 feet to dead center and hit the bleacher wall on one bounce. No one has ever hit a home run into the bleachers in Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

The wallop came on a two-strike pitch and put the finishing touch on a 7-3 Cleveland victory.

"I saw Hank Aaron hit baseballs as hard," said Indians manager Ken Aspromonte, "but I've never seen anybody hit a ball harder. It was a cannon shot. He whiplashed it. It was all wrist action."

The ball was retrieved by Indians trainer Jim Warfield and given to Tribe pitching coach Warren Spahn. Spahn insisted the ball was flat on one side.

"So help me, it was flat where he hit it," said Spahn. "No kidding! Wouldn't you be if you got hit that hard?

"This kid is a combination of Aaron and (Willie) McCovey. All he needs is to learn to be a little more consistent."

Columbus Seals will remain in IHL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Despite poor attendance and a poor won-lost record, Columbus will remain a member of the International Hockey League, Don Scott, the club's general manager, assured The Associated Press Tuesday.

The Seals called a news conference for 2 p.m. today, presumably to announce their sale from Charles O. Finley to local interests.

Heinsohn named NBA's top coach

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't think Boston is that much better than us or we're that bad," Willis Reed of the New York Knicks commented.

Then he conceded the Celtics "have the advantage, psychologically."

The Celtics, who have a 1-0 over the Knicks in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference playoffs by virtue of a 134-108 romp last Sunday in Boston, have something else going for them as they go into tonight's second game in Madison Square Garden.

They've got the National Basketball Association's Coach of the Year.

"I could see two years ago what kind of team we were going to be," Tom Heinsohn said Tuesday after being told of NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy's announcement, "and I had super fun telling everyone about it because they didn't believe me.

"People are starting to enjoy this team now, but I've enjoyed it for two years."

Rossford's Stalma to play at UC

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Joe Stalma, a 6-foot-8 centerforward from Rossford, Ohio, high school, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at the University of Cincinnati, Bearcat Coach Gale Catlett announced today.

Stalma, a 235-pounder, averaged 16.1 points and 17.7 rebounds per game last season as Rossford compiled a 20-3 record in Class AA play.

The signing was the first announced by Catlett for the 1973 season.

Duffy Daugherty says Big Ten poor

NEW YORK (AP) — Duffy Daugherty, who spent nearly two decades coaching in the Big Ten, says the college conference has plunged from all-powerful to poor.

"But," he says with Irish bristle, "the Big Ten'll be back. It was supreme before ... it'll be supreme again."

Duffy, white-haired and 57, retired last fall after 19 seasons as head football coach at Michigan State but remains there at full salary, basically as a fund raiser.

Cincinnati hockey arena future eyed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cheered by "the breakthrough, in the impasse," City Manager E. Robert Turner said a last minute move to locate a hockey arena downtown near the riverfront is gaining momentum.

After a marathon meeting which went into the night, Turner announced Tuesday "we're certainly going to try to get something worked out by the end of the week."

Lakers trip Golden State Warriors in 101-99 clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is not our game plan to win in the last 30 seconds," declared Coach Bill Sharman of the defending National Basketball Association champion Los Angeles Lakers who have done it twice in a row.

"But," added Sharman quickly, "I'll take all of them."

There were eight seconds left on Tuesday night when Jerry West pumped in a 15-foot shot from the baseline to shove the Lakers to a 101-99 victory over the Golden State Warriors and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for Western honors.

On Sunday, with 28 seconds left, the Lakers scored to go ahead of Chicago and win the opening series finale 95-92.

Warrior Jeff Mullins, who scored a dozen points in the final period and at one time marshalled a nine-point lead, commented:

"We're a better team than they are, but late in a game they have two things going for them—Wilt Chamberlain goes after every ball and West is just a helluva clutch performer.

"But the game should not have been that close."

Coach Al Attles of the Warriors agreed with that last statement and said, "We gave it away. It's upsetting. I can understand not getting a shot off with the 24-second clock running out, but I can't understand an across-the-court pass that goes out of bounds."

He referred to a Rick Barry pass with 28 seconds to go and that wound up a rugged evening for the scoring star of the Warriors who was in foul trouble with five and played only 29 minutes with 17 points.

With 7:05 remaining in the game, the Warriors led 91-82 and from then on were outscored 19-8 as West, Keith Erickon and Jim McMillian led the charge.

Twins win on Walton's pinch slam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danny Walton's a nice guy to have in a pinch.

And Tony Oliva's a nice guy to have on the bench—especially when he's the one who suggests that Walton might be better by getting off of it.

Oliva, always a potent man with a bat but less than agile in the field because of recurrent knee ailments, was made for the role of designated hitter.

But going into the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday, with Minnesota trailing the California Angels 3-1 and trying to get something going, Oliva thought perhaps someone else might be better suited for the job.

A few minutes later the Twins really had something going. They'd cut the California lead to 3-2, Steve Barber, a lefthander, had come on in relief of Bill Singer for the Angels, the bases were loaded...and Oliva was due up.

It was Walton who got the nod this time. "It doesn't bother me to be pinch-hit for," said Oliva, who had never been pinch-hit for in his major league career. "I know when I can hit and when I can't."

Quilici obviously knew when Walton could hit. "I was just thinking fly ball," the pinch-hitter said. That's what he hit, too...except it landed in the left field seats, a grand-slam home run that highlighted an eigt-run explosion and carried Minnesota to a 10-5 victory.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox clubbed Texas 10-5, the Detroit Tigers beat Boston 6-3, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees 4-2, the Cleveland Indians topped Milwaukee 7-3 and, in 14 innings, the Kansas City Royals tripped Oakland 5-4.

Bill Melton also had a memorable homer Tuesday—the 100th of his major league career. It was a two-run shot deep into the upper deck in left field that triggered a five-run Chicago blitz in the fifth inning which assured them of victory over the Rangers.

The Red Sox out-homered the Tigers 3-2, with Carlton Fisk connecting twice and Rico Petrocelli once.

Sparky Lyle, last year's ace of the Yankees' bullpen crew, has been sparking the enemy. On Tuesday night, he gave up a gamebreaking homer to Baltimore's Earl Williams in the eighth inning, the first in the American League for the former Atlanta catcher.

Oscar Gamble led the Indians over Milwaukee with a triple and two singles as he scored two runs and drove in one.

Cookie Rojas had a pair of runs batted in apiece against Oakland, but Hal McRae had the one that meant the most for the Royals. It was a 14th-inning single that sent the defending World Champion A's tumbling to their sixth defeat in eight games.

Good Shepherd plans services for Holy Week

Observance of Holy week will begin Thursday evening at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church with the celebration of the Lord's Supper in a service designed to make the event more meaningful, the Rev. Elmer E. Burrall, the pastor, said.

Following the opening of the service in the sanctuary, the congregation will go to the Lower Church for a light supper of foods eaten by the Jews during the Passover. An explanation of the Passover will be given, and Holy Communion will be administered around the supper table.

Immediately after this Maundy Thursday service, there will be a brief re-enactment of the Garden of Gethsemane experience outdoors, if the weather permits and in the sanctuary if it does not.

A service of silent communion will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday.

The Easter sunrise service will be held at 6:30 a.m. beside the lake at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Graumlich, Old Springfield Rd. In case of inclement weather the service will be held in the church. Cushions or chairs are to be taken to the lakeside sunrise service.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be celebrated again at 8 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Easter serivces in the church.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mainland China's great leap forward also is going up, sideways and through hoops tonight in an astounding 90-minute show on the ABC Television network.

The program, modestly called "The Greatest Show on the Other Side of the Earth," stars Red China's Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe, which made a four-city tour of the United States last December and January.

The tour, which drew considerable acclaim, is part of the gradual thaw in relations between the United States and mainland China that followed President Nixon's historic trip to Peking early last year.

The troupe kept the thaw going during its tour by unveiling at the start of its show a huge red banner that said, "Long Live the Friendship Between the Peoples."

At the end of the performance, another large red banner was unfurled. It was more specific. It said, "Long Live the Friendship between the Chinese and American Peoples."

Those were the only commercials. In between, as those who watch the show tonight may feel, there was a display of physical agility, endurance and grace that was downright mind-boggling.

The troupe, whose art form is more than 2,000 years old, starts off with "plate spinning," involving long sticks on which the performers each spin up to eight dinner plates while doing somersaults, handstands and getting their heads together the hard way.

For my dough, the best of the 12-part program comes at the end in the segment called "hoop diving," once called the swallow game because the hoop-divers seem to imitate the flight of swallows.

They put two hoops, one atop the other, on a stand. The idea is to leap through the hoop without knocking it over. They do it time and again, even with a second set of hoops. Don't ask me how.

Florida Senate restores name Cape Canaveral

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tired of waiting for Congress to act, the Florida Senate has voted unanimously to replace the name Cape Kennedy with Cape Canaveral — the original name — on all state road maps and highway signs.

The area had been called Cape Canaveral from the 16th Century until President Lyndon Johnson changed it by proclamation in 1963, shortly after the death of President John F. Kennedy.

State Sen. Lori Wilson said she felt it was never Johnson's intention for the entire Cape to bear the Kennedy name, only the space center area. She said the bill now awaiting action by the Florida House was not an attempt to "show any disrespect toward President John Kennedy, who was a great president."

Florida first asked Congress several years ago to change the name back to Cape Canaveral. The proposal passed the U.S. Senate last year but stalled in the House.

Area churches to sponsor Jeff Good Friday service

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Jeffersonville Community Good Friday service will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of Christ. Area churches, which are sponsoring the union service, emphasize that it is for the people of the entire community and not just those affiliated with the sponsoring churches.

The message will be delivered by the Rev. Charles W. Hill, pastor of the United Methodist Church. Roy Love, pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, will read the Scripture and offer prayer.

Special music will be by the Burns Sisters, of the Church of God, Jeri Park and Linda Taylor, of the Christian Union Church, and the Christiannaires, of the Church of Christ.

A free will offering will be distributed among the boy Scout groups in the community.

The Lewises recently attended a schooling period sponsored by the Ohio Association of Mutual Insurance Agency in Columbus after which they successfully passed the examination for insurance agents' licenses.

Both will represent the Bob Lewis Agency, 1017 Clinton Avenue.

Urge school levy OK

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Donald Waldrip, Cincinnati public school superintendent said the school board "is committed to quality integrated education" and urged passage of the 4.8 mill tax levy on May 8.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Tattooing Is for the Birds

How do you feel about the new fad of tattooing designs on the arms and the body of women?

My daughter, a high school senior, read about it the other day, and already is seeking permission to have it done.

Mrs. S.N., N. J.

Dear Mrs. N.:

I, too, read that story and emphatically disapprove of this irreversible bit of nonsense. For years I have called attention in these columns to the dangers of skin tattooing on men.

Syphilis, malaria, infectious hepatitis and other virulent diseases have been introduced into the bodies of unsuspecting people by this process.

These diseases are a severe penalty to pay for a prank that is short-lived and usually painfully regretted.

The U.S. Government issues to all members of the Armed Forces specific warnings that tattooing in foreign or domestic tattoo parlors is dangerous. Despite these warnings, when resistance levels are lowered by alcohol, illicit tattooing, with all its hazards, still exists.

In most states tattooing is illegal. Such laws should be reinforced to make people who seek to be tattooed just as responsible as those who do the tattooing. Until then, parents must exert the greatest pressure.

Tattooing is considered a surgical procedure. Therefore, anyone who tattoos a design, whether it is a ship or a lovely flower, should have written consent from the parent of a minor and a license to practice surgery. Only in this way can the hidden dangers of tattooing be eliminated.

Why don't you remind your daughter that what is acceptable in fashion today will be "dated" and "old hat" next year? Old hats can be thrown away. The length of dresses can be altered.

But a tattoo is there forever.

With spring coming on, I worry about my personal tendency to attract bees, wasps, and hornets.

What can I do about it?

Miss T.D., Ga.

Dear Miss D.:

For years I have resisted acknowledging that some people more than others attract mosquitoes and other stinging insects.

I do know that mosquitoes for some reason boycott me completely (But not me.—Ed.) I am sure that there must be an explanation for this.

There are a few precautions that you can take. It is well known that cosmetics, suntan lotions, perfume, and other fragrances do attract insects.

Some studies indicate that bright colors, too, attract this kind of insect.

People who are highly sensitive to insect bites should exert great effort to keep garbage cans covered. Leftover foods in the outdoors should be quickly discarded.

There are many insect repellents that can be applied to the skin of people who have a close bond of affinity with unwanted insects.

Houston Grand Opera becomes annual event

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Grand Opera will hold its second Spring Festival this year, May 24 through June 9. General Director David Gockley said that last year's festival was such a success that it is planned to be an annual event.

These are fully staged operas sung in English by young American singers, in Miller Outdoor Theater in Hermann Park, which accommodates 20,000 persons.

The season will present the American premiere of Baughan Williams' "Hugh the Drover," subtitled "Love in the Stocks," and Giacomo Puccini's "La Rondine." The Center Opera Company of Minnesota's entire production of Robert Kurka's "The Good Soldier Schweik" also will be imported.

BancOhio Corp. first quarter income higher

COLUMBUS — BancOhio Corp. reports that, for the first three months of 1973 ending March 31, consolidated income before securities gains or losses totaled $4,642,692 or 67 cents per average outstanding common share.

This represents a 13.6 per cent increase over the same period in 1972 when income was $4,087,038 or 60 cents per common share.

Consolidated net income after securities gains or losses for the first three months ending March 31, 1973, was $4,575,370 or $.66 per average common share which compares with $4,444,494 or $.65 per share for the same period in 1972. Earnings per common share have been computed on the average shares outstanding in each period which were 6,881,657 in 1973 and 6,843,386 in 1972.

On March 31, 1973 BancOhio Corp., which at that date had 34 affiliated banks operating 161 banking offices, reported total loans of $1,287,838,351, an increase of $265,899,640 over the first quarter ending March 31, 1972. Total deposits reported on March 31, 1973 were $2,060,802,381 which compared with $1,946,328,268 reported on the same date in 1972.

Total shareholders' equity for BancOhio Corp. was $177,862,348 on March 31, 1973 as compared to $165,747,050 on the same date in 1972. Remaining Ohio's largest multi-bank holding company, BancOhio recorded total consolidated assets of $2,592,461,657 on March 31, 1973.

In January 1973, BancOhio acquired, for $1,000,000 in cash, all of the capital stock of Citizensbank National Association, Felicity. The acquisition, resulting in a merger with the corporation's Loveland affiliated bank, was accounted for as a purchase. Accordingly, only the results of operations since the date of acquisition are included in the financial statements.

In February 1973, BancOhio acquired all of the capital stock of The Peoples Savings Bank Company, Delta, and The Western Security Bank, Sandusky, in exchange for shares of the corporation's common stock. These transactions have been accounted for as poolings of interest and accordingly the financial statements have been restated to include the newly affiliated banks for both periods.

21 acts signed for Teen Show; more expected

Twenty-one acts have been signed up for the sixth annual Teen Talent Show, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, and the committee, headed by George Gibbs, said applications for still more will be accepted at Washington C.H. and Miami Trace District high schools until Friday.

Auditions for places on the program will be held Saturday, starting at 10 a.m., in Persinger Hall of the First Presbyterian Church. Don Riber will conduct the auditions being arranged by Robert Angus.

The show will be presented at 8 p.m. May 3 in the Washington Junior High School auditorium.

The purpose of the show, according to the Rev. Gerald Wheat, club president, is to give young people of the community an opportunity to display their talents, receive constructive criticism and help raise money for college scholarships for four high school seniors who could not otherwise continue their education.

The Rev. Mr. Wheat said the cooperation of merchants in supporting the show has been outstanding. Tickets may be purchased in advance for $1 from any Kiwanian. Members of the general committee are Gibbs, the Rev. Mr. Wheat, Duane French and Swanson Mounts.

Optimist Club being organized

A new Optimist Club is being organized in Washington C. H. The purpose of the club is to serve youth and the community.

The Optimist Club of Washington C. H. would be a tax-exempt organization which would work with boys and girls, to help both normal youngsters and delinquents. As a secondary objective, the club will perform any needed community service within the organization's capability.

Any man wishing to become a charter member in the new Optimist Club may contact Jack Sanders, 513 Lewis St., (telephone 335-5028).

Richard Coates, one of the mainsprings in the program, said the backstop is in need of repairs. The Lions are to meet at the field in late afternoon or early evening for the work session, and after the field is put in condition for play, the Lions will relax at a steak cookout at the field.

An allocation of $55 to sponsor a delegate to the American Legion sponsored Buckeye Boys' State this summer was approved. The club also approved an allocation of $400 for the Babe Ruth League program.

Following the business session, Dr. Byers W. Shaw explained how broken bones are set with the use of nails and pins, some of which he used in demonstrations. Several before-and-after X-ray pictures were shown.

Recreation plans reviewed

Plans for the 1973 recreation program were discussed Tuesday night at the regular monthly meeting of the City Recreation Board.

Board member Marshall D. Boggs was authorized to proceed with plans for a fishing derby to be held this spring. The event will be open to children ages 6 through 14.

A special meeting is being planned with members of a committee which studied the needs for a swimming pool in 1970. No date has been set for the special meeting.

The summer program will be finalized at a future meeting, according to City Manager Dan Wolford.

Students begin Easter vacation

The Easter vacation for nearly 6,500 students and 280 teachers in the Washington C. H. and Miami Trace District schools started when classes were dismissed Wednesday afternoon.

The spring holiday will continue through the next three school days — Thursday, Friday and Monday. Classes will be resumed on the regular schedules next Tuesday.

The summer vacation in both district will begin June 1. Commencement will be held May 25 for Miami Trace High School and on May 27 for Washington Senior High School.

Major gasoline price hike seen for Ohio drivers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A petroleum industry official says by mid-summer the cost of gasoline in Ohio will increase five to seven cents per gallon.

Roger Dreyer, executive director of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers Association, said, "I would say you will be paying 42 cents a gallon by mid-summer."

Purchasers of wholesale fuel in Ohio are also feeling the pinch of an upcoming crisis in diesel and heating oil.

"For the first time in history, except during the war years, we have no assurance that future fuel needs will be met. And the future is right around the corner," said Robert Ratchford, executive vice president of Commercial Motor Freight, Inc., Ohio's largest trucker.

The state's deputy director for purchasing, Walter McCreary, said Ohio's requirements for heating fuel will double in the next year because of certain Environmental Protection Agency requirements.

"We may not have sufficient oil to satisfy the requirements," McCreary said. "I have requested that an energy officer be appointed to establish priorities."

The state exhausted its 1.4 million gallon limit of heating fuel earlier than expected this past winter and had to purchase oil on the open market at more than twice its contract rate.

"It hasn't struck yet because the big summer driving hasn't started yet," Dreyer said. "There has been some price increase at the wholesale level that has not shown up retail. They must show up, because otherwise people will go out of business."

"You'll see signs up, 'Sorry, no gas. Come back tomorrow.'

"Within the next 15 to 20 days when the driving starts picking up, you will see a shortage. Prices are going to go up because the crude oil costs more.

"Normally refiners stockpile gas. They had to turn all their efforts to the home heating market and utilities. This took away their storage capacity," Dreyer said.

"I don't think it will come to rationing. But the days of gas wars, where people were fighting under free enterprise, is over. When you can't get the product, you can't fight," he said.

Two major Ohio gasoline suppliers refuse to speculate on prices.

Pitt Curtiss, a Standard Oil Co. (SOHIO) official, said, "We expect to meet the demand for our product in the state of Ohio on the retail level."

SOHIO purchases three-quarters of its supply of crude oil from other refiners, Curtiss said. "The ability to forecast the quantity of the products we'll have is dependent on our ability to have a supply of crude oil. Any increased cost of crude oil represents a direct expense."

He said rationing, closing service stations certain hours or days during the week or limiting amount of fill-ups has not been discussed with dealers.

"Certainly there is a shortage of gasoline. But we do not anticipate any rationing in our retail marketing area in the Midwest," said Mike Russo, a spokesman for Marathon Oil Co. of Findlay.

"We are not anticipating any growth in sales since the amount of product available to us this year is comparable to last year," he said. Inventory for the Midwest is down two per cent from last year.

Oklahoma to forfeit 9 victories

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The University of Oklahoma Sooners, the nation's No. 2-ranked football team last year, will forfeit nine of its victories including its Sugar Bowl triumph over Penn State because of recruiting irregularities.

Athletic Director Wade Walker told a news conference the school would forfeit every game in which freshman Kerry Jackson of Houston, Tex., the top quarterback this spring, played. That will mean Oklahoma will retain victories over only Kansas State, Iowa State and Nebraska.

In addition, Walker said, the resignation of offensive line coach Bill Michael had been asked for and received.

Walker said the high school transcripts of both Jackson and Mike Phillips, also of Houston, had been tampered with. He said Michael had admitted he had knowledge of the transcript irregularities.

Head Coach Barry Switzer said he had assured Dr. Paul Sharp, the university president, that no other member of his staff was involved in the incident.

Walker also said that Jackson had stayed in the athletic dormitory during two visits to the OU campus when he was a high school senior.

Both the transcript tampering and the dorm stays are violations of Big Eight Conference regulations, and the conference is investigating, Walker said.

SEATTLE (AP) — The P-Patch is being split into small garden plots in what a city councilman calls "an urban recreational experience."

Search for body now in 9th day

The search for the body of Darrell Wheeler, 20, of Stoutsville, at Deer Creek Reservoir, continued into its ninth day early Wednesday.

Three other passengers from the April 7 tragedy were rescued.

Brown pleads not guilty to first degree murder

John Allen Brown, 21, Frankfort, pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge when he appeared in Municipal Court today for arraignment in connection with the shooting death of a 17-year-old Chillicothe girl.

Brown, represented by his court-appointed attorney Walter Seifreid, also requested a preliminary hearing on the charge. Acting Judge John Bryan set the hearing for 9 a.m. April 25. Brown's $150,000 bond was continued and he was remanded to jail.

Seifreid said he would file an application with the court requesting the appointment of additional counsel to assist him in the defense.

Police and Prosecutor Otis Hess Jr., were compiling a list of witnesses to be subpeanoed for the hearing.

Brown is charged with the Friday morning shooting death of Demeatris Louise Winfield, 17, of Chillicothe.

According to Hess, Brown shot Miss Winfield in the left temple, after she refused to walk across the room as he had ordered her to do. The shooting took place at the Leonard Kelley residence, 721 Gregg St., early Friday during an alleged "pot party," Hess said.

Miss Winfield was dead on arrival at University Hospital, Columbus.

Nixon cites 'major developments'

Watergate case wide open

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate investigation is gaining momentum after President Nixon abandoned the blanket claim of innocence for White House aides.

Nixon said Tuesday he will send his aides to testify publicly as demanded by Senate investigators preparing for hearings next month.

He said he launched a new presidential inquiry into the matter last month, about the time Watergate burglar James McCord began telling his story to a Senate committee and a federal grand jury.

This time the President's inquiry is being conducted by persons outside the White House staff, some of whose members reportedly have been implicated in McCord's secret testimony.

In a related development, Nixon's reelection committee was reported to have offered the Democratic party $525,000 in damages to settle a multi-million-dollar package of lawsuits over the Watergate raid. But Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss said he wouldn't accept any offer until it becomes clear that the affair will be aired sufficiently in public inquiries.

Nixon disclosed his actions in a three-minute statement to newsmen at the White House. No questions were permitted.

He said he met Sunday with Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen who gets reports of grand jury testimony.

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case," Nixon said, "...real progress has been made in finding the truth."

He wouldn't elaborate on the developments or name anyone who might be under suspicion. But he also said he has told investigators that no officials are exempt from prosecution, and said he'll suspend any government employe indicted in the case and fire anyone convicted.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that supersedes Nixon's longstanding claim that administration officials have been cleared, because the latest statement stems from "serious charges" that Nixon said first reached him March 21.

The President's original claim was made more than seven months ago on Aug. 29 at a California news conference. Nixon said then that presidential counsel John W. Dean III had concluded an independent investigation of the burglary and wiretapping of Democratic offices at the Watergate building.

Nixon said then "categorically" that Dean's probe indicated nobody then in the White House or the administration was involved. However, reliable sources say McCord has testified that another conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, told him that Dean himself helped plan illegal bugging and related activities.

Nixon now has abandoned his attempts to keep Dean and other White House aides off the Senate witness stand. He capitulated to demands by a special Senate investigating committee, headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that presidential aides testify in public and under oath.

Ervin's hearings begin May 15, with live television coverage permitted. Nixon said television publicity wasn't a "central issue" behind his reluctance to allow testimony by his aides.

Nixon's statement brought murmurs of approval from Republicans, some of whom have warned of looming election disaster because of Nixon's handling of the affair.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland called it a "constructive decision." Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona said he was "very pleased." Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, head of the Republican minority on the Ervin committee, said it was "a great thing for the President to do." GOP National Chairman George Bush said it "will clear the air and lay to rest public suspicion ...." Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York said it was "most welcome."

EQUIPMENT INSPECTION — Inspectors from the State Department of Transportation check the readiness of trucks at the local state highway garage, CCC Highway-W. Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent, said the inspection team checked all trucks, mowers, and other equipment to make sure they were in proper operating condition for the upcoming summer roadwork.

President spells out energy policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon removed limits today on oil imports and asked Congress to end federal price regulation on new supplies of natural gas.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said oil importers could bring in as much oil as permitted under their present quotas without paying any further tariffs. However, he said, they may import petroleum in addition to the 1973 quota levels upon payment of a fee.

He said the tariff-free imports will be phased out over seven years until all oil imports are governed by the fee schedule.

In other major points of his message, Nixon asked Congress to deregulate the price control of new natural gas supplies on the interstate market by the Federal Power Commission.

The proposed legislation would authorize the secretary of the Interior to monitor natural gas prices and impose a ceiling on them if necessary.

Prices already dictated by the FPC would remain unchanged.

The President directed the Interior Department to triple by 1979 its leasing of federal offshore areas for oil and gas development by extending the leasing into new areas beyond an ocean depth of 200 meters (about 622 feet) and beyond the channel islands off Santa Barbara, Calif.

But he resubmitted his previous proposal to create an oilfree sanctuary off Santa Barbara in the area which suffered a major oil spill in 1969.

Nixon asked Congress to authorize the Interior Department to license the construction of deep-water ports in federal waters beyond the three-mile limit.

He proposed further the department be converted into a new Department of Energy and Natural Resources, expanding his previous proposals along those lines.

To enable power plants to continue burning coal, a plentiful fuel, Nixon asked the states to postpone implementation of a national air quality standard designed to protect the environment.

Federal law requires achievement of a separate standard by 1975 for protecting public health but sets no specific deadline for attaining the environmental protection standards. At least 22 states, however, have proposed to meet both standards by 1975.

In another action Nixon directed the Interior Department to establish an Office of Energy Conservation to coordinate federal energy-saving programs.

And he directed the Commerce Department to develop a voluntary program by which manufacturers may label energy-consuming products to display their efficiency.

Live cartridges being sought south of Xenia

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Air Force personnel continued to search a 15-mile stretch of road in southern Greene County today for seven live 25mm cartridges believed to have fallen off a truck.

Officials at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton said 11 other shells were recovered earlier by the Greene County sheriff.

The shells were believed to have fallen off a truck Friday as the truck traveled between the base and the Spring Valley Wildlife Preserve, where surplus ammunition was being detonated.

An Air Force spokesman said the nine-inch, armor piercing ammunition used for anti-aircraft could explode if handled improperly.

Senate panel kills rights amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Senate committee, by a 6-3 vote, today killed the proposed equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The House passed it March 28 on a 56-40 vote.

Backers in the Senate Financial Institutions, Insurance and Elections Committee tried to delay the vote until May 1, when the General Assembly returns from an Easter recess. That was defeated 5-4.

Sens. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, and Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, offered the motion that it be recommended for passage. Both then joined the majority against it.

Joining them in opposition were Sens. M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland; Anthony F. Novak, D-25 Cleveland; Robert O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Anice W. Johnson, R-18 Aurora.

Voting for the motion were Sens. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria; Marigene Valiquet, D-11 Toledo, and the committee Chairman, Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

Matra argued that nothing would be gained by postponing the vote until May. "This issue has been before us for two years. Another two weeks is not going to make any difference."

The postponement was sought by Corts and Miss Valiquette, one of the chief lobbyists for the Equal Rights. She has been sporting an "ERA" button on her blouse since the amendment for ratification was first introduced early in the session.

Miss Valiquette claimed it was unfair that the committee take a vote just six hours after the final hearing. She indicated she had not been informed the vote would be taken.

"I consider it an absolute lie to say that anybody on this committee did not know that this issue would come up this morning," countered Aronoff. He said he had individually informed all members a motion either way would be acceptable.

The committee completed its hearing on the proposal Tuesday night. It was limited to opponents of the amendment and about 200 persons, most of them women, were present.

Death claims Frank Grubbs, former legislator and poet

Frank Grubbs, 92, of Good Hope, who was probably better known as a poet than as a former representative to the Ohio General Assembly, died at 6:50 a.m. Wednesday in Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient since he suffered a fractured hip in a fall April 7.

He was born in Somerset, Perry County, but had lived in Good Hope ever since his family moved there when he was 6 years old.

He was graduated from Good Hope High School in 1899 and for several years after that he pitched in minor league baseball at Dayton and Fort Wayne, Ind.

He was employed for a time at the Bureau of Engraving in Washington, C. C., most of his life was spent in several areas of public service. He served three terms in the Ohio legislature, was a member of the Wayne Township Board of Education, Wayne Township Board of Trustees and a deputy sheriff under Sheriff William Icenhower. He was one of the few, if not the only Fayette Countian, to be sent to the electoral college. That was for President Harry S. Truman's second term.

He was a Fayette County jury commissioner at the time of his death and recently retired after many years as the representative director of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

State budget bill up for House vote today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House was to vote today on the administration's $9.8 billion budget bill with majority Democrats predicting it will pass without significant change.

Leaders wanted to send the spending proposal to the Senate before taking an Easter recess extending from today until May 1. The Senate would have two months to act before state spending authorities lapses July 1.

New bills poured into the clerk's offices Tuesday. Today is the deadline for their introduction. A total of 119 was received, and at least 50 more were to be offered today, the House clerk's office reported.

In the only major floor action Tuesday, the Senate approved the House-passed, $92.2 million federal revenue-sharing bill 29-3. Senate changes will send it back to the lower chamber.

Sen. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, the Senate sponsor, described what he called "the only dramatic changes" from the House version.

The Senate took out of the bill an allocation of $3.8 million that would have been used to pay up to half of the fares of aged and handicapped passengers on local mass transit systems. Dennis said the deletion was agreed to in order to keep the "bricks and mortar" intent of the legislation.

He said $2.2 million of the $3.8 was added to vocational education school construction, bringing that total to about $40 million. The funds represent the state's matching share of costs already authorized by voters in vocational education school districts, Dennis explained.

Otherwise, the Senate reinserted in the measure $756,000 to match federal funds for new armories at Alliance and Youngstown-Warren. The House had taken the armories out of the bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, urged support despite the deletion of the mass transit funds which his city wanted. Calabrese said he expects the Senate to put the appropriation into the two-year budget bill.

Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, who voted against the bill, said he did so "because it calls for the expenditure of a vast amount of money with very little in it for the state's largest county." The other negative votes were cast by Sens. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, and Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma.

Dennis pointed out that Ohio's mass transit systems stand to benefit "to some extent" by a House amendment to the budget bill that sets aside $2.8 million for grants to mass transit systems for equipment. "That should help to ease their financial problems," he said.

Besides the $40 million for vocational

Indian truce is broken by gunfire

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Government reinforcements circled Wounded Knee today following a heavy exchange of gunfire that wounded at least two and possibly six of the militant Indians who have held this village 51 days.

A border patrolman from Montana said he and about 25 colleagues had been brought in to aid the 300 U.S. marshals and FBI agents around the village after the 90-minute gunfire exchange Tuesday morning and sporadic shooting the rest of the day.

An unidentified member of the estimated 150 Indians occupying Wounded Knee was listed in very critical condition this morning after undergoing brain surgery in a Rapid City hospital. A supervisor at the hospital said the man had suffered a gunshot wound in the head.

A government spokesman said at least one other Indian had been wounded during the exchange and no federal lawman had been hit. Sources on the Pine Ridge Reservation said four other militants were wounded but the five had been treated in the village.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices continued their downward drift of recent sessions as investors awaited some sign of government action on the inflationary front.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 1.13 at 952.29. In the past four sessions, the Dow has lost 14 points. Declines led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by about 6 to 5.

"The market is waiting to see what Nixon will do to tighten present controls," said William Nelson, analyst with Moody's Investors Service. In the news background, several large banks boosted their prime lending rates to 6¾ per cent today.

Howard Johnsons was volume leader on the Big Board, up ¼ to 21.

'It's not just books'

"The library is not just books." This slogan, developed several years ago for National Library Week, is more than just words put together to look good on a poster. A visit to the local Carnegie Public Library will demonstrate the facts behind these words.

For instance, did you know that the library subscribes to 136 different periodicals? No matter what your interest, you can probably find a magazine to appeal to you, whether it be the business world, arts and crafts, travel and recreation, hobbies, sports or keeping up with the latest international events.

Did you know that the library has over 600 records for your listening pleasure? All types of music are represented in the collection which contains everything from Bach and Beethoven to Grand Funk Railroad and all areas in between.

The library also has a fine collection of slides and filmstrips, both captioned and sound, which are available for circulation. If you need a topic for presentation to a club group or material for classroom study, you will no doubt find something in the audio-visual department of the library to help you out.

In addition to all these materials, the library offers photocopy service, a reference "hot-line" to the Cincinnati Library, several local and national newspapers including the Sunday New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, children's programs and services, and (we can't forget this) a collection of over 48,000 books to satisfy your educational, cultural, practical and recreational needs.

This collection is highlighted by a fine reference section, including one of the best genealogy departments in the area. And for your leisure moments there are copies of the latest best sellers and paperbacks galore.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Voodoo, Voodoo, Voodoo . . .

If you pushed the ivy away and closely scrutinized the offerings of our best colleges and universities, say, half a century ago, you could be certain to find some phony courses. However, these "guts," or "pipes," were invariably given a decent academic disguise.

You couldn't tell by reading the catalogue that Prof. Olam's Psychology 107 — "Social Pathology"— consisted of his autobiography and thoughts on life, and that the only way to get less than a B was to cut the class continually.

I point this out because many critics of the academic scene talk and write as though once upon a time ideal colleges, populated by dedicated scholar-teachers and committed students, were the norm in American higher education — whereas today the scene is dominated by cowardly administrators and faculty who have abandoned their ideals and students who have lost all interest in a real education. This is largely nonsense: the problem is that the drapes have been opened — the "gut courses" have gone public.

WHAT BROUGHT this to mind was the coincidental reading of, first, an article in Newsweek on the injection into college curriculums of courses on voodoo, witchcraft and the occult, and, second, a piece in the New York Times on a course at Cornell in wine tasting.

Newsweek's story has a marvelous quote from a man who teaches a seminar on dreams at California State University, San Francisco: the "huge desire" for occult studies, he asserted, was "a reaction to our grossly materialistic culture."

Maybe, but before going too far along that track I would like to see his grading profile, that is, what percentage of his students gets A. Students are a cold-blooded lot. I recall a professor at Columbia who rejoiced in the popularity of his courses until, one year, they were decimated. Inquiry revealed that the main cause of the fall-off was that his classroom had been moved from the first to the fourth floor of Fayerweather Hall!

In this connection we had an amusing time at my university with a course on witchcraft. Carried away by a passion for relevance, the student educational policy committee requested that witchcraft be added to the curriculum. We thought about it for a while and — somewhat to their surprise — agreed. On the appointed day a mob turned up for the first class and in walked a professor of history, who is in fact an expert on witchcraft, with the course syllabus.

Perhaps the students expected to organize covens and meet in caves at night, but they staggered out with a reading list on the history and the historical significance of witchcraft. If memory serves, seven returned and completed the course. That was the last we heard of witchcraft and one of my spies reported that a similar demand for astrology was dropped because they figured the boys in astrophysics would pull the same stunt.

BACK TO CORNELL and wine tasting. Cornell has a School of Hotel Administration which, I'm told, is highly regarded. When I was taking my graduate degree in constitutional law in Ithaca, we looked on the hotel school with genial scorn: perhaps wrongly it was regarded as a sanctuary for athletes.

In our spare time we would formulate course offerings: Sandwich-making 101, Bed-changing 267 (Graduate Seminar), and the like. However, the hotel school went its vocational way and the college of liberal arts minded its own business.

What I find distressing about wine tasting is that there are two courses. One, quite sensibly, for future hotel managers has 90 students. But another, with 214 students, is offered for general university credit!

Presumably the faculty of arts and sciences approved of this and I urge them to reconsider. There have always been "gut courses" scattered around Cornell, but this is really indecent exposure.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

A favorable Supreme Court?

WASHINGTON — Cynical though it may sound, there seems one logical reason to explain the extreme position taken by the Nixon Administration on executive privilege and the right to enforce secrecy throughout government. The answer is the Supreme Court of the United States.

Consider the sequence of events. President Nixon's aides refuse to testify before Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate investigating committee. Whether Sen. Ervin goes through with his threat to try to arrest them or not, their defiance will bring citations of contempt. This will be appealed to the courts with at least two to three years intervening before it reaches decision in the Supreme Court.

By that time it can be safely assumed the President will have not four of his own "strict constructionist" justices but five. The court will be his stone wall of defiance to the Congress.

As recent surveys have shown, the four Nixon justices have voted with remarkable consistency in any case involving presidential powers. They have been joined by either Justice Byron White or Justice Potter Stewart with few exceptions to make a majority. This leaves the three survivors, Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall repeatedly in a minority.

THE ONLY possible explanation of Attorney General Richard Kleindienst's unprecedented proposal for executive privilege for the entire executive establishment is the confidence that the Nixon court will sustain any challenge on this score. In his press conference on March 15 the President said:

"Perhaps this is the time to have the highest court of this land make a definitive decision with regard to this matter (executive privilege)."

In campaigning both in 1968 and in 1972 for "strict constructionist" judges Mr. Nixon was, in effect, campaigning against the Supreme Court. He has never given any legal definition of what he means by "strict constructionist."

There is nothing in the Constitution about executive privilege. When his aides are pressed to say what this authority derives from they cite the separation of powers.

But the Kleindienst sweep, covering everyone from the door clerk to the Attorney General himself, is to infer authority that the Founding Fathers never dreamed of.

A SUPREME COURT decision in 1957 overruled a contempt of Congress conviction of a witness who refused to divulge names of alleged Communists before the House Un-American Activities Committee. The opinion written by Chief Justice Earl Warren sustained the defense of the witness, a United Auto Workers official, John T. Watkins, based on his reliance on the First Amendment. The Chief Justice cited an earlier ruling to the effect that "an investigatioon (by Congress) into individual affairs is invalid if unrelated to any legislative purpose." "There is no congressional power to expose for the sake of exposure."

But, as those familiar with the Watkins opinion and its significance point out, the "legislative purpose" in the Watergate investigation is clear enough. It is to expose wrongdoing so that laws may be drafted to prevent future subversion of the political process.

Directly involved are men convicted of serious crimes. Officials holding influential positions in the government and subsequently in the Nixon re-election committee stand accused of violating laws governing political contributions. Either those alleged to have been participants must face a public interrogation or the public will be denied knowledge of what actually heppened, and Congress will lack the background to draft appropriate laws.

THE SUPREME COURT is literally the court of last resort. Impeachment is a proceeding within the purview of the Constitution. Impeachment was voted by the House of Representatives against Justice Samuel Chase at the time that Thomas Jefferson was feuding with Chief Justice John Marshall. But the Senate refused to find Chase guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors as provided in the Constitution. It is obviously not a recourse when ideological issues are involved.

Franklin Roosevelt, frustrated by a conservative majority repeatedly outlawing New Deal measures, sought to add six new justices of a liberal persuasion. His "court-packing" plan drew wide opposition and was rejected by the Senate, as the controversy disclosed how deep was respect and even veneration for the court.

But if President Nixon now fills it with "strict constructionists" by his definition, putting it in position as a political barricade, that respect may not long survive.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, April 18, the 108th day of 1973. There are 257 days left in the year.

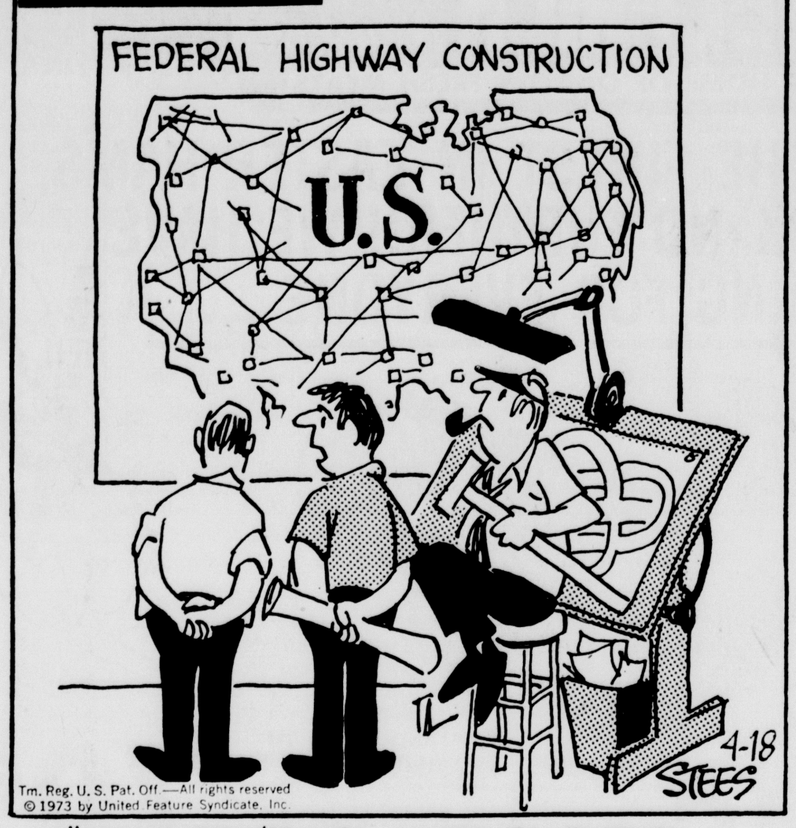

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, Paul Revere made his famous ride from Boston to warn: "The British are coming."

On this date: In 1847, U.S. forces under Gen. Winfield Scott captured Cerro Gordo Hill, the first point of resistance on Scott's march on Mexico City.

In 1906, San Francisco was hit by an earthquake. The quake and fires destroyed half the city.

"WHY DON'T WE JUST PAVE THE WHOLE THING?"

Hal Boyle . . . Hal's mailbag miscellany

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you are having trouble balancing your budget, you might keep a bird for a pet instead of a dog, a cat—or a mistress. It costs only a penny a day to feed. Some 7,670,000 U.S. families do have pet birds—about 26 million of them.

Was Abraham Lincoln the model of humility he is sometimes pictured as having been? Not according to John Hay, a White House secretary, who said in a letter to William H. Herndon, Lincoln biographer and onetime law partner: "It is absurd to call him a modest man. No great man was ever modest." Hay wrote that it was Lincoln's "intellectual arrogance and unconscious assumption of authority" that made enemies of some members of his Cabinet.

In the beginning of the automobile age, most cars were painted black. Today only three per cent are. What the trade calls "earth tones" are popular now.

Quotable notables: "Many jewels make women either incredibly fat or incredibly lean." — Playwright Sir James Barrie.

It's criminal: Crime is prevalent in modern business offices for a good reason—less than 20 per cent of all office burglaries are solved.

Wet statistic: A dry martini addict will hardly even want to dip his toe in the Atlantic ocean when he learns this: it contains 82 quintillion, 171 quadrillion, 672 trillion, 174 million, 450 thousand and 100 gallons of water—give or take a drop or two.

Hard to explain: The average man can grip or hand squeeze with a strength measured at 81 pounds, the average woman only 48 pounds. But which sex usually is able to put the squeeze on the other in a showdown?

Household help: Most experts agree that if you are trying to reduce your grocery bills you should always avoid supermarket shopping when you're hungry. You almost inevitably overbuy.

Afflicted? Try the power of the press

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that woman in Twin Falls, who wrote complaintng that no doctor in that town would deliver her baby without full payment in advance: she said a neighbor of hers who had been seeing a doctor all along suddenly found that he refused to deliver until he was paid in full.

I was a bit surprised that she hadn't gone to the newspaper. A newspaper is the public watchdog. It is the obligation of newsmen to bark when the general welfare of the public is endangered.

Sounds like weak bunch of money-hungry newsmen up there who are afraid to let anything in their paper that may make an advertiser unhappy. The advertisers then become the controlling element of the press.

This situation should be fully covered in stories and editorials. Each doctor in the town should be contacted by a reporter and his story put into print. In this action it is likely that one or more will turn up that do not subscribe to the mercenary policy described.

What is our society coming to if money, or the lack of it, determines if you have the right to live or die? Nowadays, the colleges that give the doctors their education and the hospitals in which they get their experience are largely supported by our tax dollar.

If newsmen in that area lack the intestinal fortitude to get this story in and get it in accurately, they have no right to call themselves newsmen. They lack commitment to the profession and to the public they serve. They are an insult to the professionals in the field.

That woman should camp on the managing editor's desk until he puts one or more competent reporters on the story and either proves her wrong or exposes the situation for what it is. This is the obligation of the paper to the community.

AN OLD SCHOOL MANAGING EDITOR

DEAR OLD: Hold it! The TIMES-NEWS in Twin Falls did exactly that, with no prompting from me or anyone else.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Ronny, will be 5 on Dec. 27, 1973. According to the laws of this state, a child who is 5 years old by Jan. 1, 1974, is eligible for kindergarten in September of 1973.

I'm afraid if we start Ronny in kindergarten in September he will not only be the youngest, but the smallest child in his class.

He is very bright, but his father and I are both small, and Ronny is very small for his age. Do you think he will feel handicapped if he's the shortest boy in his class?

My husband thinks we should wait a year. Then Ronny will have an extra year to grow, and maybe he won't be so much smaller than his classmates. One problem is that all of his playmates in the neighborhood will be starting kindergarten this September and he wants to start, too.

What do you advise?

RONNY'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Let Ronny start school with his friends. His mental growth is more important than his physical growth. And stop making an issue of how small he is. It may not occur to Ronny to feel handicapped because of his size unless you suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I wanted to end my life so I took an overdose of sleeping pills. My father came home and found me unconscious and rushed me to a hospital.

In order to save my life, they stuck a long tube down my throat and in so doing they impaired my vocal chords. Now I can scarcely speak above a whisper. People are always asking me if I have laryngitis.

Sometimes I say yes, but sometimes it gets so annoying I just tell them to mind their own business. What should I tell people?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: It's not necessary to explain. Simply say, "It's a chronic condition." That should suffice.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 68700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ohio Perspective

Marysville Reformatory to die

By KEN L. DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Reformatory for Women, young-looking at 56, has only three or four years to live.

The state's Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections thinks the middle-aged institution is past its prime, and plans to phase it out.

"We think we can do an even better job if we put the inmates in local communities," said Director Bennett J. Cooper. "We would create smaller institutions in, say, three metropolitan areas.

"After all, these are the communities to which the majority of the women will be going back. Being close to their communities will help in the adjustments they will have to make."

Cooper said Marysville Reformatory has, at least, two years to live. No money is included in the 1973-1975 biennium state budget for decentralizing Marysville.

But, the state has asked the federal government for $25,000 to help finance a $35,000 study of the best way to phase out the Marysville prison for women.

Cooper pointed out that inmate population at Marysville has shrunk to about 250, down from more than 400 once housed in its cottages.

"The rate of return of inmates and the cost of operating a large institution are factors in our decision," said Cooper.

He said envisioned small facilities with inmates working in the communities under the penal furlough programs with easy access to schools and training programs.

"The women could better acquire the skills that would be saleable in today's market," Cooper said.

Cooper gave the use of shock probation and improved parole handling as two reasons why the reformatory's population has been shrinking.

But, Marysville long has been stressing rehabilitation. Back in the 1940's the then-superintendent Margaret Reilly said, "No girl can be good if she doesn't have self-respect." She established a beauty parlor.

Since then the reformatory has established an improved educational program through high school, a food service training program, a beauty school and a computer technology school, among a number of rehabilitating programs.

Replacing the women's reformatory at Marysville with three smaller facilities follows the present trend in make prisons.

Never again, said Gov. John J. Gilligan at the opening of the new Southern Ohio Correctional Institution at Lucasville, will the state of Ohio build such big prisons.

For one thing, it makes it extremely difficult for families to visit inmates—an important part of returning inmates to productive lives at large.

Launch magazine for retired pros

NEW YORK (AP) — Aspiring authors over 60 years of age have a new publication designed specifically for their compositions, a glossy magazine called "IRP Review."

IRP Review will be published by a volunteer staff that includes a retired fashion editor of the New York Daily News, two former television reporters and a former teacher of literature.

The journal is the project of the 10-year-old Institute for Retired Professionals, a part of the New School for Social Research.

Mary Gerard, editor of the magazine, said, "We feel strongly that what we have to say is as important as what younger people are saying and pertinent to readers of all ages."

Mrs. Hubert Ferneau was winner of a prize during the evening. Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Farmer served refreshments.

Plans for the social and husbands' party for May 5 at the Springfield dinner-theater were made.

Wesleyan Guild

Mrs. Helen VanZant presented "The Easter Story" for devotions at the opening of the Wesleyan Service Guild held in the church parlor. It was announced that the new hymnals had arrived and were presented to the church at the Sunday morning service.

The Guild will serve breakfast to the Youth Group in Fellowship Hall Sunday following Sunrise Service.

The program topic, "Easter Story" was given by Miss Helen Slavens, who made three chalk drawings depicting the symbol of Christianity, the Resurrection as hope and the church as the Ascension. She first drew a cross using the poem "I Am the Cross of Christ" by William Stigdor; the second picture was to represent Resurrection; and the third one was the Ascension, using the poem by Edward Markham, "The Testimony of Mary Magdalene at the Ascension."

All were invited to the dining room for refreshments of an Easter motif, served by Mrs. Dena Haines and Mrs. Nellie McFadden.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

I'm certainly glad to be back without that pain in my neck! I really believe my family enjoyed all the peace and quiet and, of course, I enjoyed the pampering. The cheery cards and flowers you sent really helped shorten those long days. Aren't we lucky to have such a fine medical staff within our community?

I'm especially pleased to have such a fine working team on our Fayette County Council for Elderly Concerns. Mrs. Edna Naylor, Mrs. Patti Briggs and the Rev. Ralph Wolford have taken a personal interest in making our 'Meals on Wheels' project a fine quality community service for citizens in their senior years. This is not a "charity" program. The 90c per meal pays for the food and labor costs. Shouldn't you be encouraging someone you know to enroll who has lost the desire or ability to cook? Call 335-0429 (First Baptist Church) to enroll.

Mrs. Richard Arnott works hard each week in lining up drivers to deliver the meals. She especially needs substitutes. Why not call her at 335-5464 and offer your help?

Legion Auxiliary hears Hi-Y project in action

The American Legion Auxiliary of Paul H. Hughey Post 25 met in the Legion Home with Mrs. William E. Williams presiding. Miss Verna Williams, chaplain, offered prayer.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Lawson Rhoads made the monthly trip to the VA Hospital, Chillicothe, to take cookies provided by Mrs. Rhoads, Mrs. Wayne Boyer, Mrs. Maryon Mark, Mrs. Charles Howard and Mrs. W. H. Warning to be served to 60 patients.

A rummage sale was planned for May 5 at the Legion Hall. Members with articles to be picked up may contact Mrs. Charles Foster.

Mrs. Philip Ford, children and youth chairman, introduced Mike Domenico, David Mustine, Steve Hill and Steve Fenton, who were representatives of the Youth in Government group of the Hi-Y Club. This program was initiated many years ago by Chief Justice C. William O'Neil. It is divided into two areas, the legislative and judicial. Domenico and Mustine spoke for judicial and explained some of the activities. One was the actual planning and conducting of two mock trials held in Common Pleas courtroom with Judge Coffman presiding.

Legislative activities were explained by Hill and Fenton. Their group observed the Ohio legislature in action and have formulated bills to be presented to mock legislature at the convention in May in Columbus. The actual Senate and House chambers of the capitol will be used that day. At the same time the judicial group will be presenting appeals before the Supreme Court.

A contribution was made to the Hi-Y to support the program in the high school.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, APRIL 19

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Be careful in handling finances. Try not to commit yourself to future payments when there is no certainty that you will have the money at the time.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

The realism you show in issues before you, and prompt attention to important matters will bring satisfying — even some unexpected — returns. Stress your innate good judgment.

GEMINI
(May 21 to June 21)

Opponents of your policies may have a point or two. Try for clarification. Some differences can be avoided, others ironed out.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

This is a day in which to look before you leap. Before acting, carefully investigate estimates, investments, new ventures generally. Keep firm control over emotions.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Authorities or associates may not back your wishes. But following a policy which is in the interest of all will have favorable results in the long run.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

The importance you attach to some things may have to be shifted to more pertinent matters, but don't let fear of change or plain stubbornness hamper your efforts.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Here is a time for reevaluating, "pulling over to the side" to determine if you can improve your situation through new ideas or methods. Be eager to meet new challenges.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Sturdy effort will do the trick on this on-and-off day. Planetary influences variable; some hours may be really tricky. All situations should prove interesting, however.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Much of this day's success will depend upon your disposition, approach and participation in going endeavors. Listen to both sides of a debate and note all factors.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Steady, consistent continuance of any worthwhile endeavor will soon bring rewards. Not an unusual day in any respect, but much can be accomplished.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

This day needs enthusiasm — backed up with thorough knowledge of what you're about. Reckon with others' skill, experience. Competition may be strong.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't make snap decisions and don't expect the "worst," a tendency now. No matter how difficult your assignments, you can do a better job than you may think.

Opening lead - jack of diamonds.

It is fairly common to encounter a setting where it is more dangerous to have one defender on lead than the other.

The principle of avoiding the dangerous opponent finds it application in numerous and sundry forms. Here is a case where South applies the principle twice in one hand.

West led the jack of diamonds and declarer made his first good move when he played low from dummy and low from his hand.

South realized he might lose a trump trick (if he misguessed the trump situation), and also a diamond, and therefore it was imperative to arrange matters so that he did not lose two heart tricks.

But South also realized that he could cope with the heart situation if he kept East out of the lead to prevent a heart return through the king, for then he could discard two hearts on dummy's clubs. It was in line with this thought that he did not play the queen of diamonds from dummy at trick one. The double duck of the jack eliminated all chance of East's ever taking the lead in diamonds.

West continued with a diamond, taken with the ace, and South pursued his campaign of preventing East from gaining the lead by playing a trump to the king and finessing the ten on the way back.

When the finesse succeeded, declarer scored the obvious eleven tricks, but he would have been on equally firm ground had the trump finesse lost to West's queen. In that case he would have scored only ten tricks, but he would have fulfilled his main assignment.

Note that, in tackling the trumps as he did, declarer was not so much interested in guessing the location of the queen as he was in making sure that if he lost a trump trick it would be to West, not East. With West on lead, the contract was invincible.

Expert sees free trade most effective way of meeting unlimited demand

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't think there's a limit on economic demand," said Peter Flanigan. Human need, he insisted, is never satisfied. "For me, for example, it's a place in the mountains and a boat and more."

Flanigan, who led the team that produced new trade proposals announced last week by President Nixon, was introducing what for him is another incontestable thesis: "The most effective way to meet demand is in free trade."

That notion isn't universally accepted. While trade advocates claim that $1 billion of exports produces 91,000 jobs, protectionist forces claim that imports might be destroying as many jobs — and industries too.

Flanigan, assistant to the President for international economic affairs, believes that free trade promotes the most efficient utilization of resources, including workers, and thus produces the lowest prices. But, he adds, trade today isn't free.

Europe wants to protect its less efficiently grown crops from American exports. Japan seeks to protect its computer industry. And some Americans would like to restrain imports of shoes that are produced at lower cost abroad.

The thrust of the President's approach to world trade negotiations that begin in September, Flanigan suggested in an interview, is to promote more open and equitable trade as the underpinning of international economic expansion, a bonus of which would be to give many nations a vested interest in world peace.

It begins with the assumption that needless frictions exist because of existing inequities. "There is a fundamental imbalance in the system," Flanigan said. "It was put in place after World War II when we had all the chips. Our priority was to rebuild, and we were overly generous."

As other nations or groups of nations regained their competiveness, the need to change the monetary and trading systems grew evident. Other nations could devalue their currencies, for example, but not the United States.

The old monetary order has now been challenged and buried. The United States has now devalued and thus, in theory, made its goods more competitive in world markets. But the United States still feels sinned against in trade.

Nixon's bill, called the Trade Reform Act of 1973, calls for a reduction of trade barriers if other nations are willing to lower theirs, one purpose being to bring exports, which totaled $48.8 billion last year, closer to the import figure of $55.7 billion.

Will this deficit be erased by the President's proposals?

"I don't know," said Flanigan. "We're not going into the negotiations with the idea of getting a surplus." That, he suggested, might take care of itself.

Among the bargaining tools sought by the President is unlimited authority to raise, lower or eliminate tariffs, and the authority to retaliate against what are perceived to be inequities imposed against American goods.

This proposal was widely referred to in the press as "unprecedented and sweeping," but Flanigan insists it is not. Similar rights were granted the President under the 1962 Trade Expansion Act, he said.

"Phony charge," is how he described that accusation. "It emerged because of the confrontation of the President with Congress. We are not seeking sweeping new power. We are asking for authority given in the past, to reflect the new experiences."

The second major aspect of the proposals, the right to restrain imports for five years so as to protect certain American industries, has also been criticized as an attempted usurption of power. But Flanigan notes that Congress retains its veto.

"It's a hell of a matter to go into negotiations with fewer chips than the other guy," he said, referring to the broad powers held by negotiators for some other nations.

Temporary certification issue raised

Teacher contracts, resignations top county school board agenda

Teaching contracts, resolutions pertaining to the employment of persons holding temporary certificates and extra-duty assignment contracts, and seven teacher resignations topped the agenda for the Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night.

Board members also took care of a number of miscellaneous and routine matters at the regular semi-monthly meeting.

The board approved a resolution of an intent not to re-employ teachers serving under temporary certificates. Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the board is without the authority to re-employ these persons until completion of further course work and the recommendation of the superintendent.

Those holding temporary certificates are Mrs. Susan Augspurger and Paul Grim, high school; Mrs. Elnora Armintrout and Mrs. Nancy Johnson, Title I; and Mrs. Kay Black, Mrs. Shirley Bowen, Mrs. Alberta Brennan, Mrs. Joan Rhoads, Mrs. Betty Shipley and Mrs. Carol Thomas, elementary.

IT WAS recommended by Superintendent Foster that teachers holding supplemental contracts for extra-duty assignments be notified by April 30 that such contracts expire at the end of the present school year. Many duties involving such assignments have not been completed and assessed in April, and the board will be in position to make a better decision at the end of the year, according to Foster.

Seven teacher resignations were accepted by the board. Resigning were Miss Joan Black, principal at Bloomingburg Elementary School; Mrs. Ruth Markley, teacher at Wayne School; Mrs. Bonnie Ulrich, junior high teacher at Eber School; Mrs. Linda Barker, special education teacher at Eber School; Jerry Sears, sixth grade teacher at Wilson School; Miss Paula Metzger, mathematics and French teacher at Miami Trace High School; and Mrs. Barbara Bernier, fifth grade teacher at Wilson School.

The contracts of two teachers were terminated at the end of the school year. These teachers are Jack Brown, instrumental music at the high school, and Mrs. Julie Smith, part-time business education teacher at the high school. Brown's contract was terminated since Paul Febo, former instrumental music teacher, will be returning from a leave of absence, and Mrs. Smith's due to insufficient enrollment in the business education course.

ONE-YEAR contracts were awarded to:

Harold Cook, high school; Mrs. Celeste Armentrout, Mrs. Mariah Fullerton, Mrs. Sandra Lake, Miss Shirley Taylor and Mrs. Irene Thornburg, elementary.

Two-year contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Lila Engle, Glen Marchal, Jeffrey Evans, Ronald Norcross and Mrs. Sandra Sowash, high school; Richard Bell, Michael Campbell, Mrs. Susan Coil, Mrs. Katherine Carter, Mrs. Lois Duff, Mrs. Lucy Estep, Mrs. Martha Evans, Miss Linda Gifford, Mrs. Mary Lou Griffith, Mrs. Dorthea Harvey, Mrs. Susan Justenson, Mrs. Gloria Karnatz, Miss Ruth Ann LaFollette, Mrs. Mary Lee Marshall, Miss Mary Ann Mossbarger, James Oughterson, Terry Richard, Mrs. Connie Sears, Mrs. Roberta Sewell, Miss Margaret Williams, Mrs. Christine Yambor, Roger Zimmerman and Mrs. Carolyn Shoemaker, elementary.

Three-year contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Donna Brown, Miss Jean Ann Davis, Mrs. Nancy Davis, Mrs. Catherine Lynd, David Pellior, Mrs. Vicki Snow and Edward Volker, high school; Miss Jerri Bomgardner, Gerald Burner, Mrs. Hazel Garringer, Mrs. Gladys Hammond, Miss Pat James, Miss Marie Kelley, Mrs. Mary Agnes Knecht, Mrs. Grace Patton, Mrs. Jennifer Pellior, Mrs. Jane Riley, Charles Roark, Mrs. Peggy Gass and Mrs. Evelyn Reeser, elementary.

Continuing contracts were awarded to:

Mrs. Freda Corcoran, Mrs. Anna Hutchens and Mrs. Sue Stewart, elementary.

IN OTHER action:

The board accepted a student from the Westfall School District in Pickaway County on a tuition basis to attend New Holland School the remainder of the school year;

Agreed to support a high school project to construct a new trophy case. The funds will be raised by the senior class. The board tabled action on a request by Athletic Director Delmar Mowery and Principal Curtis E. Fleisher to convert a restroom area into a weightlifting room;

Granted Superintendent Foster permission to attend a county superintendents meeting May 15-17 at Salt Lake Lodge in Cambridge; and

Approved routine bills, the monthly district financial statement and high school and elementary activity accounts.

County board approves federal fund resolution

A resolution calling for action to preserve federal funds for education was unanimously approved by members of the Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night.

The measure, introduced by Superintendent Guy M. Foster, urges congressional representatives to give immediate attention to the seriousness of the fact that the appropriations have not been approved for 1973, and to utilize their congressional powers to continue the aids which serve the needs of the schools.

It also states that the board supports affirmative action to preserve the intent of the Congress and prohibit the impoundment of educational funding and suggests that proposed legislation for 1974 be enacted at the earliest possible date.

The resolution, similar to those approved by the Washington C. H. Board of Education and the Great Oaks Joint Vocational school board, also asks that the Congress and the President of the United States reexamine federal funding for elementary and secondary school education as to appropriate changes so that funding may be effective with the legislative for 1975.

The statement also points out that the school board "has a firm committment to continue and improve the support of educational opportunities for each of the children now attending the schools in the Miami Trace School District, and that the board is deeply concerned with the current state of uncertainty of both the procedures for and availability of federal funding for elementary and secondary education after July 1, 1973."

It points out that pupils in the elementary schools have had the services of Title I personnel assisting them in overcoming reading problems.

Two injured slightly in rural crash

Two persons suffered minor injuries Tuesday afternoon in a two-car collision at the intersection of Ohio 41 and Bloomingburg-New Holland Road.

Sheriff's deputies said Dorothy J. Anders, 48, Milledgeville, and Nella R. Surgenor, 17, New Holland, both received minor bumps and abrasions in the 3 p.m. crash. Miss Surgenor was later treated by her family physician.

According to investigating officers the Surgenor car had pulled westbound off Bloomingburg-New Holland Road onto Ohio 41 when the car went into a skid as it made a left turn. The vehicle slid left of center and collided headon with the northbound Anders car.

Both cars were extensively damaged.

A tractor-trailer rig jackknifed on an exit ramp at the U.S. 35 & I-71 interchange at 12:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Sheriff's deputies said Wilbur Iman, 47, Louisville, Ky., who had braked his rig for the stop sign on the southbound exit ramp when the trailer jackknifed across the roadway. The rear of the 1970 model cab was heavily damaged.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— William Morton, 73, the owner and manager of the Morton Hotel in downtown Cincinnati was shot and killed at the hotel's desk between 3 and 3:30 a.m. today.

Pastor resigns at South Solon

SOUTH SOLON — The Rev. Daniel Parker has resigned as pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union here, effective in July, to become executive secretary of the district's youth group. He and his family will live in Columbus, and he will commute to his office in Circleville.

Meanwhile, plans are being made for an Easter sunrise service in the village's community park. If the weather is rainy or cold, the service will be held in the church, with the Rev. Mr. Parker and the Rev. Paul Dodge officiating.

A combined choir of the Church of Christ in Christian Union and United Church of Christ will provide special music.

The following Sunday, the Madison Plains chorus will give a concert at 7:30 p.m., April 29, in the United Church of Christ. The chorus will leave May 31 for a tour of Europe and will return June 19.

Budget readjustment urged by Cincy solon

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Councilman Thomas Luken called Tuesday for a readjustment of Federal budget priorities in order to restore program cuts he said will mean a loss of $29.4 million to Cincinnati in 1974.

Luken says he will ask in a resolution in City Council today that the President and Congress reduce spending for defense, foreign aid and space programs and eliminate "unwarranted tax preferences." The savings from that move could be directed at restoring the recently-cut urban programs.

Norwegian exports to the United States increased 17 per cent in 1972 over the previous year.

Rotarians get report on MT schools

County Superintendent of Schools, Guy M. Foster, outlined some of the successful programs of the Miami Trace school system and also some of its problems for Rotarians at the club luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

President Fred Domenico announced that the Washington C. H. club will be the host for the 1974 district conference and that Laurence Dumford will serve as the general chairman. Robert Haigler, district governor, is a member of the Washington C. H. club. Many of the details for hosting the conference remain to be worked out.

Domenico also welcomed John Toby, Montgomery Ward store manager, into the club. He was sponsored by James Ward.

DAVID BAUGHN, program chairman, introduced Foster, who noted that there are 11 elementary schools in the Miami Trace District and that the number of grades in each differs. He said 3,825 youngsters are enrolled in the district schools, from kindergarten through high school.

The schools have a budget of $2.3 million for normal operations but expenses of the school lunch program bring the total up to around $3 million a year, he said.

When the kindergarten was started last fall, Foster said there was some skepticism because full-day sessions were planned. (Most kindergartens are on half-day sessions, he noted). However, he declared, the kindergarten has been working out "very well" with the full-day schedule.

APPROXIMATELY 70 MTHS students are enrolled in the Laurel Oaks vocational school, Foster pointed out, estimating that more than 170 would go from MTHS to the school next year. The vocational school, he said, is filling a need.

The program of volunteers working with the teachers in the classroom in the school offices and library, Foster said, has not only been a help to school personnel, but also has led to a closer understanding between the school and the people.

Along that same line for improved communications, he pointed out that the school board meets in different schools throughout the county to make it easier for the people to take advantage of the opportunity to meet with members of the board. School administrators, he reminded, also have been meeting with parents at so-called "coffee hours" at the different schools.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school was described as the weakest part of the school system because it lacks many of the facilities for some courses — home economics for example.

Finances, he said, always are a problem explaining that, while the schools have received an increase from State Foundation funds, it also received a mandate for spending it.

Educational standards have been raised since more teachers are being graduated from the universities. This, he said, makes it possible for the administration to be more selective in the employment teachers.

Student guests were Brian Storm of WSHS and Steve Sollars, of MTHS.

The only other guest was Ed Wolfe, of Delaware, with Ray Downing Visiting Rotarians were Bill Stout, Bob Woods and Dave Frazier, of Circleville, and Darrell French, of Wilmington.

Pentagon papers case near end

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cross-examination of Daniel Ellsberg in the Pentagon papers trial is expected to wind up today as the defense team prepares to rest its case.

Ellsberg testified all day Tuesday, giving terse answers to government questions, and was to return to the witness stand today for an estimated hour more of quizzing.

"I'm finding these questions very easy to answer," Ellsberg said after Tuesday's session. "I'm just saying what I did.

"I think we've been able to present a good case of what we did and why we did it. I think they (the jurors) will find that we did what we should have."

He has testified that he and co-defendant Anthony J. Russo copied the top secret study of the Vietnam war because Ellsberg wanted to present it to Congress. Ellsberg has said he had hoped the documents would spur congressmen to end the war. Both defendants are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft for the copying.

Attorneys for Ellsberg and Russo indicate that Ellsberg may be the last defense witness called. The government has said it would call several witnesses in rebuttal.

In questioning Ellsberg, Asst. U.S. Atty. David Nissen said Ellsberg had broken his promises not to copy classified documents and not to show them to unauthorized persons. The promises were in numerous forms signed by Ellsberg when he worked for the Rand Corp. "think tank" dealing with government projects.

"I signed that in good faith," Ellsberg said of a form issued when he first picked up the papers for use in a Rand study on "lessons of Vietnam." He said he didn't intend to copy the papers then but decided to do so later.

Ellsberg, clad in a blue sportjacket and gray slacks for his third full day on the witness stand, testified he later ignored Rand's rules and the statements he had signed because he felt they didn't apply to the Pentagon papers.

A point in the 7½-week defense case has been that the study was improperly kept secret and classified.

Tax refunds to be slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says late-filing taxpayers will have to wait at least six to seven weeks before any refund checks due them are put in the mail.

An IRS spokesman said Tuesday the vast majority of tax-refund checks should be processed and sent out by the end of May.

But some may take longer, so any taxpayer who has failed to receive an expected refund by that time should wait until mid-June before contacting the IRS service center where he filed his return, the agency added.

Latest figures by the IRS show that almost $10 billion in refunds will be mailed out during the next two months.

Through April 11, the IRS had processed 36.3 million refunds totaling $12.5 billion. It is expecting to send a total of $22 billion in refunds to taxpayers this year.

The average refund totals $345.95, up about $95 from the average of a year earlier.

Smoke bomb set off at OSU dormitory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A smoke bomb set off in Drackett Tower on the Ohio State University campus Tuesday night brought numerous pieces of fire-fighting equipment to the scene and caused evacuation of about 100 residents.

Officials said a fire alarm was turned in when smoke was seen coming from a room on an upper floor of the men's dormitory. There was only minor damage and no injuries were reported.

Teacher training proposal rapped by university dean

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House Education Committee was told Tuesday teacher training won't be improved by requiring an extra year of education.

What Ohio's teacher colleges need to do, said George Dixon, dean of the University of Toledo's College of Education, is make "fundamental changes" in the way they train their students for the classroom.

Dixon testified in opposition to a bill introduced by Rep. Norman Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, that would require five years of teacher preparation.

The measure also provides that a new State Board for Professional Personnel in Public Schools make detailed requirements for the type of training teachers should receive during the five years.

Dixon said he thought such a board would do little more than "refurbish" existing teacher training programs.

Also speaking out in opposition to the bill were the Ohio Education Association and the Ohio PTA.

The House Education Committee also heard testimony on a bill sponsored by Rep. Vernon F. Cook, D-39 Cuyahoga Falls, that would require the state to absorb interest payments for school districts borrowing money because taxes were not collected on time.

Dr. Harold E. Wilson, superintendent of Cuyahoga Falls schools, told the committee that Summit County tax bills have not gone out yet for the last half of 1972.

Wilson said his district has had to borrow $1.5 million so far this year at an estimated interest cost of about $3,000.

Other witnesses testified to similar problems in the Akron and Twinsburg school districts and in Ashtabula, Licking, Athens and Montgomery counties.

Flood of state proposals includes test for newsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state lawmaker who led last year's unsuccessful drive to repeal the state income tax says he thinks newsmen need to know more about fiscal matters.

Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-81 Laura, introduced Tuesday a bill that would require reporters to pass an examination on state fiscal matters before being allowed use of the Statehouse press room.

Netzley didn't mention the income tax campaign, but said he thinks Ohioans are not informed on budgetary matters and that it's the fault of the news media.

"I'm serious," he said.

He didn't say how he thinks the chances for the bill are, but he said "I expect it to get at least one hearing."

The Laura Republican's bill was among more than 100 measures introduced one day prior to the House and Senate deadline for introduction of bills. Others covered subjects ranging from traffic lights to medical schools, elections, and co-educational athletic teams.

Among 93 measures in the House were proposals to:

Establish a medical school loan commission, allow sale of alcohol on fairgrounds when fairs are not in session, change the primary election date to June in presidential years and to September in others, abolish mayors' courts, provide tax relief for renters over 65, limit campaign expenditures by public officials, authorize co-educational athletic teams in public schools, revise traffic light laws to include green arrows, right turn on red, and left turn lanes, and establish state anti-poverty action councils.

Among 26 new Senate bills were seven by Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, to make various election law reforms—including door-to-door registration.

Other Senate proposals would require the state to pay strip mine owners the value of coal that cannot be mined under state regulations, prohibit any public official from receiving a salary higher than that of the governor, and set requirements for building construction permits.

No end seen to rainfall across East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms scattered rain from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Ohio Valley to the northern Appalachians today, as a new storm gathered over the Great Basin.

Excessive rainfall during the past two days has aggravated the flood threat on all rivers from eastern Texas through the lower Mississippi Valley, the National Weather Service said.

Twelve inches of rain swamped Morgan City, La., Monday and Tuesday, seven inches washed New Orleans and five-inch downpours ranged northward into Mississippi.

Tides three to five feet above normal along the north-central Gulf Coast also produced tidal flooding and slowed the flow of several rivers at flood stage.

Stockmen's advisories were issued from Nevada to Colorado and Wyoming as rain mixed with snow spread over the area on gusty winds.

The cold air following the storm was expected to produce winds to 45 miles per hour over the Southern California coast. Gale warnings were posted along the central California coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 28 at Great Falls, Mont., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

22-year-old missing person case revived

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — One of Cleveland's most famous and its oldest missing person case will be reopened this morning when police check out a tip that the body of Beverly Potts is buried beneath a West Side auto repair shop.

Beverly Potts was 10 years old when she disappeared Aug. 24, 1951 — almost 22 years ago. She had walked one block from her home to view a showwagon presentation at a park playground.

Cleveland detectives are withholding the name and location of the garage until they can search the place.

The girl's parents are dead and a sister, Anita, moved from the city several years ago.

Truck fire causes only minor damage

Only minor damage was reported in a truck fire at the intersection of Ohio 41 and Parrott Station Road Tuesday morning.

Sheriff's deputies said a wheel bearing caught fire on a semi-rig driven by Howard W. Robinson, Wilmington. Officers attempted to douse the fire with an extinguisher but were unsuccessful. The Jeffersonville Fire Department was called to the scene.

Grimsley drapes ciphers around Padres

Don Zimmer predicts Cincy repeat in NL

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Now that he has seen all five of the Padres' National League rivals, San Diego Manager Don Zimmer is willing to predict Cincinnati will repeat as league champion.

"I thought Houston might make a race of it if its pitching was sound, but right now I can't see anyone beating the Reds," Zimmer said Tuesday night after lefthander Ross Grimsley beat the Padres 3-0 for Cincinnati's fifth straight victory.

"The Reds have too much balance—speed, power, pitching, defense, everything," Zimmer judged.

Cincinnati had trouble last year with San Diego lefthander Fred Norman, who beat them four times in five decisions. Tuesday night, the Reds nicked Norman for three runs in seven innings, one on a single by Dave Concepcion and the others on a two-run homer by Joe Morgan.

"Norman pitched a good game, but we're hot," said Pete Rose after the defending National League champions gained their ninth victory in 12 games this spring.

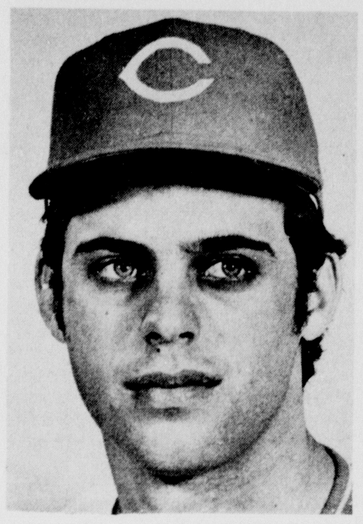

Morgan had a hand in both Cincinnati rallies. The little second baseman singled to open the sixth inning, and was bunted to second and scored on Concepcion's single with two out.

Rose walked with two out in the seventh before Morgan sliced his third homer of the year against the left field wall, above the new eight-foot-high yellow stripes that have shortened the home run dimensions here.

"I didn't think they would want me to pitch to you," Rose said to Morgan in jest.

"That's the first opposite-field homer 'Ive ever hit, even in the minors," said Morgan, a lefthand hitter who stands only 5 feet 7. "I don't have any power to left field but I knew the one tonight would be off the wall. I hit it good."

The Padres collected eight hits, two more than the Reds, but Grimsley, 2-0, appeared even tougher than he was last season when he had a 14-8 record and won two of three games in the World Series against Oakland.

Added attractions on tap

Reds launch 8-game homestand on Friday

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds, leaders in the National League's West Division, will open an eight-game homestand starting Friday night at Riverfront Stadium.

Hank Aaron, closing in on Babe Ruth's lifetime home run record, will make his first appearance of the year when Atlanta invades for a three-game series starting Friday.

MONTREAL will make its initial appearance of the season here Tuesday and Wednesday April 24-25 and Philadelphia visits Riverfront for a three-game weekend series April 27-29.

The homestand is loaded with specials for everyone. It gets started with Teen Night on Friday when youngsters through age 19 can purchase regular $3 reserved seats for $1. The Blue Stone Ivory, a Cincinnati rock group, will provide the pre-game entertainment.

The season's first Businessmen's Special is on tap Wednesday, April 25 when the Expos are the attraction. Game time is 12:30 p.m., which gives the fan an opportunity to lunch at the ball park, see the game and still get back to the desk for a couple hours work late in the afternoon.

That day will also be special for senior citizens. Fans 65 and over can purchase a regular $3 reserved seat ticket for $1.50 for the Cincinnati-Montreal game.

College Night is scheduuled Friday, April 27 when the Phillies make their first stop in Cincinnati this season. Nationally-known recording artist LeRoy Van Dyke will entertain prior to the game. College students and their dates can purchase a regular $3 reserved seat for $1.50.

One of the biggest Reds specials of the year is Bat Day, which will be held Sunday, April 29. Each boy or girl, 14 and under accompanied by a separate paying adult, will receive an official Louisville bat suitable for Little League use. Each bat will be autographed by a Cincinnati player.

ALTANTA presents a new look in 1973. Manager Eddie Mathews made some moves over the winter and acquired second baseman Dave Johnson and catcher John Oates from Baltimore in exchange for versatile Earl Williams. The Braves also obtained pitchers Gary Gentry and Dan Frisella from the New York Mets and Carl Morton from Montreal.

Montreal is always a tough opponent for the Reds. Expos manager Gene Mauch, one of the game's top strategists, is always up to something, like the time in 1972 when he employed a five-man infield against Cincinnati.

Chances are the Reds will see lefty Steve Carlton when the Phillies invade. The Philadelphia ace was the Cy Young Award winner a year ago when he won 27 games.

Cubs' Fergie outduels Seaver for 1-0 victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver is not only a great pitcher but he knows his baseball, too.

"You've got to score to win," the New York Mets' ace said knowingly Tuesday after being outpitched by Ferguson Jenkins, who hurled a two-hitter and retired the last 18 batters as the Chicago Cubs made off with a 1-0 victory.

Seaver, who rarely gets any batting support, also is perceptive.

"I noticed from the first inning that we didn't score any runs," he added.

In his three outings this season, Seaver has been matched against Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and Jenkins. The Mets went wild in his first start, mauling Carlton for three runs in a 3-0 victory. They exploded for two in the first inning of a 2-1 triumph over Gibson and that's the last time Seaver has had any runs to work with.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 4-3 in 14 innings, Philadelphia outslugged Montreal 9-6, Cincinnati blanked San Diego 3-0, San Francisco took a doubleheader from Atlanta 15-2 and 2-0 and Los Angeles trimmed Houston 7-2.

Seaver, who allowed five hits, breezed through the first nine Cub batters before Rick Monday hammered the first pitch of the fourth inning over the right field fence for the game's only run. Monday had only four previous hits this season, all singles.

Pittsburgh reached Bob Gibson for a 3-0 lead in the first inning but had to wait until the 14th and Dave Cash's run-scoring single to make the victory over St. Louis official. Reliever Alan Foster walked Gene Alley to open the 14th and Gene Clines sacrificed before Cash laced his decisive single to left field.

Tommy Hutton's two-run pinch double highlighted a four-run rally in the eighth inning that carried Philadelphia past Montreal.

Ross Grimsley scattered eight hits and Joe Morgan and Dave Concepcion provided the offense as the Reds beat the Padres for their fifth consecutive victory and ninth in the last 10 games following an 0-2 start.

San Francisco pounded out 21 hits in trouncing Atlanta in their opener. The barrage included two singles and two doubles by Chris Speier, four singles by Ed Goodson, a double and homer by Tito Fuentes and a two-run double by Dave Rader.

The nightcap was a pitcher's battle, with Ron Bryant and Randy Moffitt combining on a five-hitter to best Ron Reed.

Willie Davis and Ron Cey homered to back the eight-hit pitching of Andy Messersmith as Los Angeles won its fifth game in a row and sent Houston to its fourth straight defeat.

Post 25 tryout call

Three dates have been scheduled for tryouts for the Washington C. H. American Legion Post 25 baseball team.

Dennis Morris, the new Post 25 head baseball coach, announced that the tryouts will open at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 29 at the Washington Senior High School diamond.

Morris, head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains High School, said all boys interested in playing in the summer program must attend the April 29 tryout session.

Other tryouts are booked at 2 p.m. May 6 and at 2 p.m. May 13, both at the WSHS diamond.

Panthers atop SCOL baseball title chase

Miami Trace, which has emerged from the starting gate with four consecutive victories, is atop the South Central Ohio League baseball standings this spring.

Head coach Dave Pellior's fourth Miami Trace edition, which captured the SCOL baseball championship two years ago with a glittering 9-1 worksheet, are leading the league with a 2-0 record.

The Panthers have beaten defending SCOL champion Circleville and always-tough Hillsboro on the weather-hampered spring sports schedule. Miami Trace has also picked up a pair of non-league wins.

MIAMI TRACE appears destined to better last year's 6-8 all-games and 5-5 (third place) SCOL showing. In 1971 when the Panthers were SCOL champions they registered a gleaming 15-3 overall record.

Circleville, which lost to pesky Wilmington Monday night, is in second place with a 3-2 record. Hillsboro and Wilmington are next in line with identical 1-1 loop marks.

Head coach Rodger Mickle's second Washington C. H. Blue Lion version holds a 1-2 SCOL record. The Blue Lions topped Wilmington, but dropped a pair of contests to Circleville. The Lions are 5-5 overall.

Head coach Ron Bash's Greenfield McClain team, which lost the services of all-league third sacker Larry Crabtree when he participated in an independent basketball tournament, is winless in league action.

LL tryouts set Monday

Tryouts for boys wishing to participate in the Washington C. H. Little League baseball program this summer have been postponed until Monday.

Major league players who had their tryouts rained out this week, starting with boys numbered 51 and on, will tryout at 6 p.m. with the minor league tryouts following. All boys eight and nine years old before July 31 and new to the program are required to try out Monday.

Lee Lynch, president of the Washington C. H. Little League, said the rainy weather and Easter weekend forced postponement until Monday.

Hendrick's homer sets new mark

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Indians center fielder George Hendrick flattened one side of the baseball, along with the Milwaukee Brewers, with one swing of the bat Tuesday night.

Hendrick's sixth-inning blast carried 455 feet to dead center and hit the bleacher wall on one bounce. No one has ever hit a home run into the bleachers in Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

The wallop came on a two-strike pitch and put the finishing touch on a 7-3 Cleveland victory.

"I saw Hank Aaron hit baseballs as hard," said Indians manager Ken Aspromonte, "but I've never seen anybody hit a ball harder. It was a cannon shot. He whiplashed it. It was all wrist action."

The ball was retrieved by Indians trainer Jim Warfield and given to Tribe pitching coach Warren Spahn. Spahn insisted the ball was flat on one side.

"So help me, it was flat where he hit it," said Spahn. "No kidding! Wouldn't you be if you got hit that hard?

"This kid is a combination of Aaron and (Willie) McCovey. All he needs is to learn to be a little more consistent."

Columbus Seals will remain in IHL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Despite poor attendance and a poor won-lost record, Columbus will remain a member of the International Hockey League, Don Scott, the club's general manager, assured The Associated Press Tuesday.

The Seals called a news conference for 2 p.m. today, presumably to announce their sale from Charles O. Finley to local interests.

Heinsohn named NBA's top coach

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't think Boston is that much better than us or we're that bad," Willis Reed of the New York Knicks commented.

Then he conceded the Celtics "have the advantage, psychologically."

The Celtics, who have a 1-0 over the Knicks in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference playoffs by virtue of a 134-108 romp last Sunday in Boston, have something else going for them as they go into tonight's second game in Madison Square Garden.

They've got the National Basketball Association's Coach of the Year.

"I could see two years ago what kind of team we were going to be," Tom Heinsohn said Tuesday after being told of NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy's announcement, "and I had super fun telling everyone about it because they didn't believe me.

"People are starting to enjoy this team now, but I've enjoyed it for two years."

Rossford's Stalma to play at UC

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Joe Stalma, a 6-foot-8 centerforward from Rossford, Ohio, high school, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at the University of Cincinnati, Bearcat Coach Gale Catlett announced today.

Stalma, a 235-pounder, averaged 16.1 points and 17.7 rebounds per game last season as Rossford compiled a 20-3 record in Class AA play.

The signing was the first announced by Catlett for the 1973 season.

Kennedy 'misconduct' under study

NEW YORK (AP) — The Board of Governors of the National Basketball Association meets today to decide whether Commissioner Walter Kennedy was "guilty of misconduct" in the John Brisker case as held by a Federal judge.

The Board's decision also will decide whether Philadelphia or Seattle gets the No. 4 first round pick in Thursday's NBA draft of college players.

Brisker, a high scoring 6-foot-5 forward, had been picked by Philadelphia in the 1969 NBA draft, but he signed with Pittsburgh of the American Basketball Association. When the Pittsburgh franchise folded after the 1972 season he signed with Seattle.

Kennedy permitted Seattle to keep Brisker, but since Philadelphia held prior rights the Commissioner awarded Seattle's first round draft pick to the 76ers and fined the SuperSonics $10,000.

U.S. District Court Judge John H. Tenney ruled last week that Kennedy had "usurped" the authority of the Board and was "guilty of misconduct" because he did not hold a hearing or consult with the Board before making his decision. Judge Tenney also eliminated the fine.

Rich Wooster wins feature at Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Rich Wooster took command at the three-quarter mark and held on for one-length win in the $1,200 feature race at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night.

Driven by Richard Hackett, the winner returned $5.60, $3 and $2.60. Lady Dartmouth placed at $4 and $3 and Prim Bloom paid $3.60 to show.

The 7-7 combination of Bryans Scotty Jeff and Key Express returned $35.20 in the daily double.

A crowd of 1,566 produced a handle of $118,845.

Duffy Daugherty says Big Ten poor

NEW YORK (AP) — Duffy Daugherty, who spent nearly two decades coaching in the Big Ten, says the college conference has plunged from all-powerful to poor.

"But," he says with Irish bristle, "the Big Ten'll be back. It was supreme before ... it'll be supreme again."

Duffy, white-haired and 57, retired last fall after 19 seasons as head football coach at Michigan State but remains there at full salary, basically as a fund raiser.

Cincinnati hockey arena future eyed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cheered by "the breakthrough, in the impasse," City Manager E. Robert Turner said a last minute move to locate a hockey arena downtown near the riverfront is gaining momentum.

After a marathon meeting which went into the night, Turner announced Tuesday "we're certainly going to try to get something worked out by the end of the week."

Lakers trip Golden State Warriors in 101-99 clash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is not our game plan to win in the last 30 seconds," declared Coach Bill Sharman of the defending National Basketball Association champion Los Angeles Lakers who have done it twice in a row.

"But," added Sharman quickly, "I'll take all of them."

There were eight seconds left on Tuesday night when Jerry West pumped in a 15-foot shot from the baseline to shove the Lakers to a 101-99 victory over the Golden State Warriors and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for Western honors.

On Sunday, with 28 seconds left, the Lakers scored to go ahead of Chicago and win the opening series finale 95-92.

Warrior Jeff Mullins, who scored a dozen points in the final period and at one time marshalled a nine-point lead, commented:

"We're a better team than they are, but late in a game they have two things going for them—Wilt Chamberlain goes after every ball and West is just a helluva clutch performer.

"But the game should not have been that close."

Coach Al Attles of the Warriors agreed with that last statement and said, "We gave it away. It's upsetting. I can understand not getting a shot off with the 24-second clock running out, but I can't understand an across-the-court pass that goes out of bounds."

He referred to a Rick Barry pass with 28 seconds to go and that wound up a rugged evening for the scoring star of the Warriors who was in foul trouble with five and played only 29 minutes with 17 points.

With 7:05 remaining in the game, the Warriors led 91-82 and from then on were outscored 19-8 as West, Keith Erickon and Jim McMillian led the charge.

Twins win on Walton's pinch slam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danny Walton's a nice guy to have in a pinch.

And Tony Oliva's a nice guy to have on the bench—especially when he's the one who suggests that Walton might be better by getting off of it.

Oliva, always a potent man with a bat but less than agile in the field because of recurrent knee ailments, was made for the role of designated hitter.

But going into the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday, with Minnesota trailing the California Angels 3-1 and trying to get something going, Oliva thought perhaps someone else might be better suited for the job.

A few minutes later the Twins really had something going. They'd cut the California lead to 3-2, Steve Barber, a lefthander, had come on in relief of Bill Singer for the Angels, the bases were loaded...and Oliva was due up.

It was Walton who got the nod this time. "It doesn't bother me to be pinch-hit for," said Oliva, who had never been pinch-hit for in his major league career. "I know when I can hit and when I can't."

Quilici obviously knew when Walton could hit. "I was just thinking fly ball," the pinch-hitter said. That's what he hit, too...except it landed in the left field seats, a grand-slam home run that highlighted an eigt-run explosion and carried Minnesota to a 10-5 victory.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox clubbed Texas 10-5, the Detroit Tigers beat Boston 6-3, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees 4-2, the Cleveland Indians topped Milwaukee 7-3 and, in 14 innings, the Kansas City Royals tripped Oakland 5-4.

Bill Melton also had a memorable homer Tuesday—the 100th of his major league career. It was a two-run shot deep into the upper deck in left field that triggered a five-run Chicago blitz in the fifth inning which assured them of victory over the Rangers.

The Red Sox out-homered the Tigers 3-2, with Carlton Fisk connecting twice and Rico Petrocelli once.

Sparky Lyle, last year's ace of the Yankees' bullpen crew, has been sparking the enemy. On Tuesday night, he gave up a gamebreaking homer to Baltimore's Earl Williams in the eighth inning, the first in the American League for the former Atlanta catcher.

Oscar Gamble led the Indians over Milwaukee with a triple and two singles as he scored two runs and drove in one.

Cookie Rojas had a pair of runs batted in apiece against Oakland, but Hal McRae had the one that meant the most for the Royals. It was a 14th-inning single that sent the defending World Champion A's tumbling to their sixth defeat in eight games.

Good Shepherd plans services for Holy Week

Observance of Holy week will begin Thursday evening at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church with the celebration of the Lord's Supper in a service designed to make the event more meaningful, the Rev. Elmer E. Burrall, the pastor, said.

Following the opening of the service in the sanctuary, the congregation will go to the Lower Church for a light supper of foods eaten by the Jews during the Passover. An explanation of the Passover will be given, and Holy Communion will be administered around the supper table.

Immediately after this Maundy Thursday service, there will be a brief re-enactment of the Garden of Gethsemane experience outdoors, if the weather permits and in the sanctuary if it does not.

A service of silent communion will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday.

The Easter sunrise service will be held at 6:30 a.m. beside the lake at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Graumlich, Old Springfield Rd. In case of inclement weather the service will be held in the church. Cushions or chairs are to be taken to the lakeside sunrise service.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be celebrated again at 8 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Easter serivces in the church.

Florida Senate restores name Cape Canaveral

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tired of waiting for Congress to act, the Florida Senate has voted unanimously to replace the name Cape Kennedy with Cape Canaveral — the original name — on all state road maps and highway signs.

The area had been called Cape Canaveral from the 16th Century until President Lyndon Johnson changed it by proclamation in 1963, shortly after the death of President John F. Kennedy.

State Sen. Lori Wilson said she felt it was never Johnson's intention for the entire Cape to bear the Kennedy name, only the space center area. She said the bill now awaiting action by the Florida House was not an attempt to "show any disrespect toward President John Kennedy, who was a great president."

Florida first asked Congress several years ago to change the name back to Cape Canaveral. The proposal passed the U.S. Senate last year but stalled in the House.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mainland China's great leap forward also is going up, sideways and through hoops tonight in an astounding 90-minute show on the ABC Television network.

The program, modestly called "The Greatest Show on the Other Side of the Earth," stars Red China's Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe, which made a four-city tour of the United States last December and January.

The tour, which drew considerable acclaim, is part of the gradual thaw in relations between the United States and mainland China that followed President Nixon's historic trip to Peking early last year.

The troupe kept the thaw going during its tour by unveiling at the start of its show a huge red banner that said, "Long Live the Friendship Between the Peoples."

At the end of the performance, another large red banner was unfurled. It was more specific. It said, "Long Live the Friendship between the Chinese and American Peoples."

Those were the only commercials. In between, as those who watch the show tonight may feel, there was a display of physical agility, endurance and grace that was downright mind-boggling.

The troupe, whose art form is more than 2,000 years old, starts off with "plate spinning," involving long sticks on which the performers each spin up to eight dinner plates while doing somersaults, handstands and getting their heads together the hard way.

For my dough, the best of the 12-part program comes at the end in the segment called "hoop diving," once called the swallow game because the hoop-divers seem to imitate the flight of swallows.

They put two hoops, one atop the other, on a stand. The idea is to leap through the hoop without knocking it over. They do it time and again, even with a second set of hoops. Don't ask me how.

Area churches to sponsor Jeff Good Friday service

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Jeffersonville Community Good Friday service will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of Christ. Area churches, which are sponsoring the union service, emphasize that it is for the people of the entire community and not just those affiliated with the sponsoring churches.

The message will be delivered by the Rev. Charles W. Hill, pastor of the United Methodist Church. Roy Love, pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, will read the Scripture and offer prayer.

Special music will be by the Burns Sisters, of the Church of God, Jeri Park and Linda Taylor, of the Christian Union Church, and the Christiannaires, of the Church of Christ.

A free will offering will be distributed among the boy Scout groups in the community.

The Navy has a job that will pay you more than $75.00 a week to start, plus...

Probably a lot more than you could earn in a run-of-the-mill job when you think that $75 a week is just spending money ... when you don't have to pay for food, housing, medical or dental bills ... when you get some of the best job training in the world free ... when you can travel to places like Hawaii and the Caribbean.
Navy money's pretty good.
So are the jobs and the travel and even the food. The Navy's got a lot of new programs that can help you go places inside the Navy, and when you get out. Like the join-now, report-up-to-six-months-later program. Like the Naval Reserve two-year active duty plan.
If the Navy sounds like a place you'd like to be, call or see

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Tattooing Is for the Birds

How do you feel about the new fad of tattooing designs on the arms and the body of women?

My daughter, a high school senior, read about it the other day, and already is seeking permission to have it done.

Mrs. S.N., N. J.

Dear Mrs. N.:

I, too, read that story and emphatically disapprove of this irreversible bit of nonsense. For years I have called attention in these columns to the dangers of skin tattooing on men.

Syphilis, malaria, infectious hepatitis and other virulent diseases have been introduced into the bodies of unsuspecting people by this process.

These diseases are a severe penalty to pay for a prank that is short-lived and usually painfully regretted.

The U.S. Government issues to all members of the Armed Forces specific warnings that tattooing in foreign or domestic tattoo parlors is dangerous. Despite these warnings, when resistance levels are lowered by alcohol, illicit tattooing, with all its hazards, still exists.

In most states tattooing is illegal. Such laws should be reinforced to make people who seek to be tattooed just as responsible as those who do the tattooing. Until then, parents must exert the greatest pressure.

Tattooing is considered a surgical procedure. Therefore, anyone who tattoos a design, whether it is a ship or a lovely flower, should have written consent from the parent of a minor and a license to practice surgery. Only in this way can the hidden dangers of tattooing be eliminated.

Why don't you remind your daughter that what is acceptable in fashion today will be "dated" and "old hat" next year? Old hats can be thrown away. The length of dresses can be altered.

But a tattoo is there forever.

With spring coming on, I worry about my personal tendency to attract bees, wasps, and hornets.

What can I do about it?

Miss T.D., Ga.

Dear Miss D.:

For years I have resisted acknowledging that some people more than others attract mosquitoes and other stinging insects.

I do know that mosquitoes for some reason boycott me completely (But not me.—Ed.) I am sure that there must be an explanation for this.

There are a few precautions that you can take. It is well known that cosmetics, suntan lotions, perfume, and other fragrances do attract insects.

Some studies indicate that bright colors, too, attract this kind of insect.

People who are highly sensitive to insect bites should exert great effort to keep garbage cans covered. Leftover foods in the outdoors should be quickly discarded.

There are many insect repellents that can be applied to the skin of people who have a close bond of affinity with unwanted insects.

Houston Grand Opera becomes annual event

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Grand Opera will hold its second Spring Festival this year, May 24 through June 9. General Director David Gockley said that last year's festival was such a success that it is planned to be an annual event.

These are fully staged operas sung in English by young American singers, in Miller Outdoor Theater in Hermann Park, which accommodates 20,000 persons.

The season will present the American premiere of Baughan Williams' "Hugh the Drover," subtitled "Love in the Stocks," and Giacomo Puccini's "La Rondine." The Center Opera Company of Minnesota's entire production of Robert Kurka's "The Good Soldier Schweik" also will be imported.

Benefits for Indians

MACON Ga. (AP) — The Allman Brothers Band has plans to do a series of benefit concerts to aid Indians of North America.

The money from the benefits will be used to set up a fund for the preservation of the North American Indian Culture.

The goal is to raise $2 million, to aid various North American Indian organizations.

On March 31, 1973 BancOhio Corp., which at that date had 34 affiliated banks operating 161 banking offices, reported total loans of $1,287,838,351, an increase of $265,899,640 over the first quarter ending March 31, 1972. In January 1973, BancOhio acquired, for $1,000,000 in cash, all of the capital stock of Citizensbank National Association, Felicity. Accordingly, only the results of operations since the date of acquisition are included in the financial statements.

In February 1973, BancOhio acquired all of the capital stock of The Peoples Savings Bank Company, Delta, and The Western Security Bank, Sandusky, in exchange for shares of the corporation's common stock. These transactions have been accounted for as poolings of interest and accordingly the financial statements have been restated to include the newly affiliated banks for both periods.
